New Marble Headstones For Civil War Vets' Graves

By SCOTT JACKSON

With Memorial Day approaching, 18 new, white marble headstones marking the graves of Civil War soldiers were recently installed at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, replacing headstones that were rendered illegible by more than 100 years of weathering.

Twenty-two soldiers of the Civil War are buried in the same section at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, said George Bouchard, the graves registration officer for the city's Veterans Services Department. All but four of the Civil War soldiers' original headstones had become unreadable over the years.

Bouchard said he and Linda Perchard, a volunteer and member of the Cemetery Board of Managers, worked together to have the 18 other headstones replaced by the U.S. Department

No Vote Yet On FoxRock Deal

Councillors Seek More Information From Koch Administration On Project

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday continued their deliberations on the proposed deal with FoxRock Properties that would allow the developer to build a medical office building in Quincy Center and a residential project at the site of Quincy Medical Center, asking Mayor Thomas Koch's administration to provide additional information before taking a vote.

FoxRock has proposed constructing a 200,000-square-foot medical office building, a 196-unit residential building and 140-room hotel on the Ross Lot in Quincy Center as well as a 490-unit residential development at 114 Whitwell St., the Quincy Medical Center site. The Planning Board was set to hold a public hearing on the latter site Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

James Marathas: Housing Authority Preparing RFP To Develop Land Behind 80 Clay St.

By SCOTT JACKSON

James Marathas, the executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, said he hopes the agency is able to build more affordable housing in the city, including new units that could be built in Germantown and Wollaston.

The new units are just one of the initiatives the Quincy Housing Authority has in the works. Others include new accessible units at Sawyer Towers, an adult daycare at O'Brien Towers, elevator modernization at three of the agency's high-rise buildings, and playground and rotary renovations in Germantown.

Marathas, who has served as executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority since May 2017, said one of the goals for the coming years is to create new affordable housing in the city.

"The big thing is the need for affordable housing. We all know that as rents rise – and they are, the rents for Quincy are almost mirroring Boston at this point – and as that happens the need for affordable housing continues to grow and the pressure continues on us to provide housing," Marathas said. "The lobby is a busy place every day. There are people in and out every day. The applications just keep coming and coming and coming and there just isn't enough stock and there isn't enough inventory to go around.

"One of my goals for the next couple of years is going to be to try to create some new affordable housing opportunities for the city."

To that end, Marathas said QHA would be releasing a request for proposals to build a multi-story building near Tobin Towers at 80 Clay St. in Wollaston.

"We're currently preparing an RFP to go out to bid which will be looking for a developer to develop the land behind 80 Clay St., which will hopefully be to create some new affordable housing. That would be a multi-story building," Marathas said. "We are looking for opportunities to create affordable housing

Receipts Ahead Of Estimates

By SCOTT JACKSON

Local receipts during the current fiscal year are now expected to surpass $31.7 million, nearly $4 million over the initial estimates.

Mark Cavanagh, the city's director of municipal finance, on May 13 provided city councillors with an update on the fiscal year 2019 local receipts as councillors began their review of Mayor Thomas Koch's proposed $324.7 million budget for fiscal year 2020, which begins July 1.

Local receipts, which includes dozens of different items, comprise about 11 percent of the city's revenue. Koch's budget anticipates the city will receive $34-million in local receipts in fiscal year 2020.

Koch To Appoint Commission On Disabilities

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch plans to appoint members to the Quincy Commission on Disabilities, following a City Council resolution urging him to do so.

The mayor, in a recent interview, said the commission was never disestablished. Instead, he said the commission's members left over the years.

"It's still sitting there, but the people that were on it moved on or passed. I respect the council's desire to get this thing back up and running, so we will look for some new members," Koch said.

City officials, the mayor added, are mindful of the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act, though he acknowledged there could be room for improvement.

"I will say this - I've been in government for 32 years and it's almost ingrained now, so every time you do a building, you're mindful of the ADA, every time we do a road," Koch said.

"When you go back when this was instituted there were a lot of complaints and a lot of issues people had. I'm not saying there aren't issues, but they had a lot more back then. We've come a long way in every regard.

Do You Know Where Your Stormwater Is?

By MAUREEN MAZRIMAS

It's that time of year — when we look to improving the appearance of our property — and that frequently starts with our lawn! However, in "greening" our lawn, we could be contributing to pollution in Quincy Bay and other local bodies of water.

YOU'RE NOT JUST FERTILIZING THE LAWN!

(Image Courtesy of Washington State Dept. of Ecology)

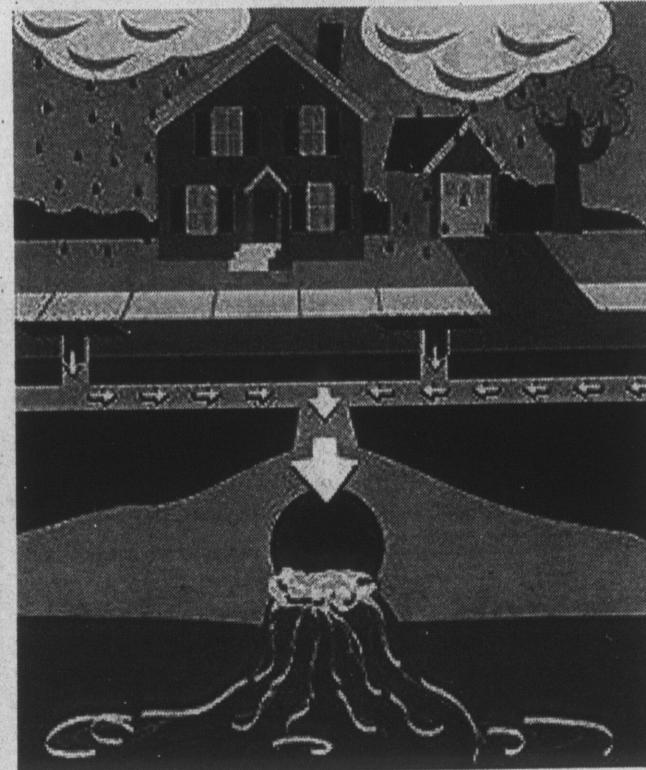

Lawn fertilizers (and other pollutants such as pesticides, oil, gasoline, antifreeze and dog waste) mix with rain and irrigation runoff, wash into storm drains on the street, and empty into local waterways, with no filtration or treatment.

While fertilizers are good for plants, they're not so good for water quality. In ponds, streams, and rivers, fertilizers are pollutants that harm fish and wildlife, and can cause smelly algae blooms.

BE A LAWN HERO:

PROTECT YOUR LOCAL WATERWAYS!

- Recycle grass clippings with a mulching mower. Clippings are a free, natural fertilizer — and all that most lawns need.
- Sweep or blow grass clippings and fertilizers off of pavement, and away from storm drains and wetlands.
- Never fertilize before a heavy rainstorm (light rain is ok).
- Don't apply fertilizer with phosphorous to an existing lawn. It's illegal in MA unless a soil test says you need it.
- Choose fertilizers with 75-100% "slow-release" or "water insoluble" nitrogen.

Be a lawn hero this spring! Use fertilizer sparingly to protect local waterways.

SAVE WITH SOIL TESTING

Save money, save water, get tested! Don't fertilize unless necessary. Send a soil sample to UMass before fertilizing. Of those who fertilize, a mere 10-20% get a soil test to understand their exact lawn needs. (CWP 1999). Save hundreds on wasted fertilizer with an inexpensive soil test from the UMass Soil Test Lab. It gives you scientific fertilizer recommendations for your unique lawn. You may be able to skip the chemicals and welcome birds, bees and bare feet to your lawn this summer.

Quincy is part of the Neponset Stormwater Partnership (NSP), which helps communities reduce water pollution, and save money. Through regional cooperation and resource sharing, municipal stormwater management is less expensive and more effective. NSP provides Quincy with many incredible tools to assist residents in becoming better stewards of the resources entrusted to us, including this information on lawn care.

For more about how you can help prevent stormwater pollution and simple steps that you can take to protect our waterways, visit the Neponset Stormwater Partnership at <https://yourcleanwater.org/residents/>.

Local aid from the state comprises 14 percent of the city's annual revenue. The remaining 75 percent comes from property taxes.

Cavanagh said the city received $29.27 million in local receipts during fiscal year 2018. His office projected Quincy would receive $27.93 million in local receipts when the fiscal year 2019 budget was put together and Cavanagh now anticipates finishing out FY19 with $31.4 million in local receipts.

"Not to bury the lead, local receipts, I'm very happy to report, are trending higher this year — 13.7 percent higher in fiscal 2019," Cavanagh said. "Projections indicate that could amount to about $3.8 million more above our estimate."

The single-largest source of local receipts is the motor vehicle excise tax. Cavanagh said the city is projected to collect $12.1 million in excise taxes during the current fiscal year, $850,000 more than originally projected.

The second-largest source of local receipts are licences and permits. Cavanagh said the city is on pace to collect $5.33 million in license and permit fees this year, compared to the $4.5 million originally projected.

Meal taxes collected by the city are also expected to beat their initial estimates. Cavanagh had estimated the city would collect $1.86 million in meal taxes before the fiscal year; he now anticipates the city will end the fiscal year having collected $1.99 million in meal taxes.

Cavanagh also anticipates an increase in local aid from the state in the new fiscal year. Quincy will receive $44.54 million in local aid this fiscal year and early state budget projections would give the city $46.57 million in FY20.

"State aid — more good news — is also trending up," Cavanagh said. "That was the latest word from Beacon Hill."

The increase includes an extra $1.25 million Chapter 70 funding for Quincy Public Schools and $533,000 more in unrestricted local aid.

The resolution identifies several initiatives the commission could work on. They include an accessibility survey; review of the city's pedestrian and traffic signals to ensure compliance with ADA standards; improving communications between residents and city employees, including through the city's website and social media; community events to promote

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS REAL PHOTO postcard is a 1908 view of the old West Quincy Methodist-Episcopal Church that stood for almost 100 years at 87 Hall Place in West Quincy. Like so many small neighborhood churches this one had meager beginnings. It was built in 1874 by members of the congregation on a donated lot of land using lumber salvaged from a building that was also donated. The clock and the organ came from a $2,000 gift from Quincy philanthropist Henry W. Faxon. The clock tower was a local landmark and it could be seen for all over West Quincy including the quarries that loomed overhead. The last service was held here in 1957 when the congregation merged with the then St. Paul Methodist Church on Fort Street. This building then stood vacant for a number of years until the city demolished it as a hazard.

READERS FORUM

Concerned About City Taking Properties For Non-Payment Of Taxes

I am writing today out of deep concern about a two page Legal Notice in the Quincy Sun dated Thursday May 9, 2019 that identifies properties the City of Quincy plans to take May 24, 2019 for non-payment of taxes.

Drawn here by the long history of humanistic writing, the focus on academics, and the elevation of human rights above many other states, I have lived here over 30 years.

Once, I read that District of Columbia was taking property over very trivial back taxes for even less than $100 dollars – disproportionately affecting poor black property owners. I was sure such an egregious violation could not happen in Quincy – to anyone.

When I saw this posting in which the very first Quincy property listed will be foreclosed May 24, 2019 for $258.34 plus interest and penalties, and others like it on the two pages of listed properties I could not believe my eyes!

It seems to me that a government of the people, by the people, and for the people should first assume that such failure to pay is for good reason or omission, not for no good reason. I am familiar with the elderly having health issues that suddenly cause them to lose control of their person, their mind, their dwelling and their finances. Such a person is a victim – not a scofflaw. Some people don't have the intellectual wherewithal to manage their affairs. This too is a biological reality; they are not a scofflaw.

I believe in a society where a government works on behalf of all its citizens, including those afflicted with illness, old age, loss of memory, or loss of ability to cope it is the duty of that government to do what it can to find and help that person, not punish first and ask questions later.

Could some owners be dead inside the home or elsewhere in the city, the country or the world (e.g. while traveling)? Might they have moved out of state not ever knowing they owed back taxes because of not leaving a forwarding address, or a forwarding address had expired. Are some in nursing homes or being cared for by children out of state who didn't think to contact the city about their parent's property tax and have not been able to travel there to get mail (e.g. because of work and children, etc.)?

The two page spread does not state anywhere what outreach efforts have been performed on behalf of these citizens. It should if it did any.

I worry that should I go abroad on an extended trip and become hospitalized I might fail to receive and be able to pay my property tax bill. I have asked several folks in town hall about the possibility of getting these bills by email as well as in the mail so I never miss one, and being able to pay it online from where ever I am. It seems like a simple request. "Help me never miss paying a bill." Yet, the answer has been "no, we don't do that." That will set many people up for failure.

If you don't do your utmost to make the bills available to property owners the way the property owner wishes to receive it, I believe Quincy is out of step with the times. Is it holding people hostage to a single USPS mailing or a pair of mailings? Shall I go into the increasing rate of misdelivery of mail? What about the pile of advertising that a single piece of first class mail might be hidden in? This has happened to me. It is not just theory!

In summary, I think our city council and our state legislators should try to find a set of better solutions that can isolate the true scofflaws from those that have just experienced adversity plus multiple methods of communication to owners. I am aghast at the City's actions or failure to explain to the public, the due diligence efforts made. I call on our elected representatives to make this matter a priority – to ensure humanism in City Hall.

City Council OKs Parking Project

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said that he will expedite the half million dollar Quincy Center Development project authorized by the City Council.

By a vote of 7 to 2 the council approved taking and loan orders that will provide for both the expansion in off-street parking facilities and the opening up of the traffic bottleneck at the easterly end of Granite Street at the northerly approach to the Ross Parking area.

Only Councillors George G. Burke and Richard W. Barry voted against the proposal.

The project included the addition of 161 parking spaces between Granite St. and the Hancock Cemetery as well as the widening of Granite St. between Hancock St. and Upland Rd. (Editor's note: The parking area would be named after Walter Albert Della Chiesa, Mayor Della Chiesa's son, a graduate of West Point, who was lost when his plane crashed off Okinawa on the first day of the Korean War.

CHANGES IN PARKING REGULATIONS

Changes in parking regulations recommended by a special parking meter committee headed by Councillor George Burke and including Councillors Carl W. Anderson and James S. McCormack, were passed by the city council and sent to the mayor.

The committee recommended that parking meters be retained in the parking areas for the time being.

Other recommendations included increasing the cost of all day parking in the Upland Rd. and Adams Academy lots from 25 to 50 cents, as well setting up the 100 meters in the Hancock Parking lot for three hour limits to assist shoppers.

Mica Curtin-Bowen Dances In 'Master Choreographers'

The Muhlenberg College dance program showcased seven world-premiere works by seven world-class choreographers in its annual "Master Choreographers" concert, on Feb. 7-9.

Mica Curtin-Bowen from Quincy was one of the dancers who took part in "Master Choreographers."

"This concert presents a sensational evening of dance," says Karen Dearborn, founding director of Muhlenberg's dance program, and the concert's artistic director. "We're excited to show case these electrifying works by our acclaimed guest artists and faculty."

This season's concert featured works by critically acclaimed guest artists as well as Muhlenberg faculty choreographers.

Close to 600 supporters took part in Interfaith Social Services' Stop the Stigma 5K April 27, a record for the 45th annual event. The race, held each spring at the Kennedy Center in North Quincy, brings runners and walkers together to support Interfaith's efforts to challenge stereotypes and eliminate the stigma of mental illness and addiction.

The event raised more than $50,000 for Interfaith's programs, including The New Directions Counseling Center. New Directions has offered compassionate and skilled counseling for more than 70 years. The program is a mental health safety net for the South Shore, offering services on a sliding-fee scale based on income, to ensure that everyone has access to the help they need. Funding from the 5K will make it possible for hundreds of individuals to access care, especially those who are uninsured or underinsured.

Support from multiple local businesses and individuals help to make the event possible, including backing from 5K level sponsor The Heritage, Companies and Gold level sponsors Arbella Insurance Foundation, Boston Medical Center Health Net Plan, J. Sacred Heart School 50th Reunion June 8

A reunion for the first graduation of classmates who attended Sacred Heart School, now Quincy Catholic Academy, is planned for Saturday, June 8 at the Quarry Room, lower level of the Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

Sacred Heart School was the parish school. It opened in 1961 with an initial enrollment of 3 first grade classes. Each year, only one grade of 3 classes was added until 8th grade. Teachers were mostly the Sisters of Saint Joseph. Their convent was right next to the school. The first graduating class was 1969. A couple of classmates were talking and realized it was the 50-year anniversary of graduation. Those classmates have formed a reunion committee and started searching for classmates. Almost all of the 106 graduates attended for the full eight years.

The Religious Lives Of The Adams Family Topic June 24

On Monday, June 24, join Sara Georgini from the Massachusetts Historical Society as she discusses the religious lives, particularly the women, of the Adams Family.

This special program includes a talk with Georgini, as well as a visit to the Stone Library to see the physical representations of some of the "Household Gods." The Adams Family, globetrotters who extensively chronicled their religious journeys, ultimately developed a cosmopolitan Christianity that blended discovery and criticism, faith and doubt.

This talk will begin in the Carriage House, located at 135 Adams St., Quincy, at 2 p.m. Limited street parking is available. A book signing will follow.

Georgini, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., earned her doctorate in history from Boston University. She is series editor for The Papers of John Adams, part of the Adams Papers editorial project based at the Massachusetts Historical Society in Boston.

Adams National Historical Park includes the birthplaces of the second and sixth presidents of the United States, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, along with the Old House at Peace field, home to both presidents and four generations of their distinguished family. During the open season, May 18 through Nov. 10, tickets to the historic homes can be purchased at the Visitor Center located at 1250 Hancock St., Quincy.

A free park trolley transports visitors from the Visitor Center to the Birthplaces and the Old House at Peace field for a two and a half hour tour. The first tour leaves at 9:15 a.m. and the last tour leaves at 3:15 p.m., seven days a week including federal holidays.

Tickets are $15 for adults (children 15 and under are free) and sold on a first-come, first-served basis. Credit or debit card only.

South Shore Health Awards $1.8M In Behavioral Healthcare Grants

The South Shore Community Behavioral Health Initiative (SSCBHI), led by South Shore Health, has awarded $1.8 million in community grants to two local non-profit agencies for their work to support behavioral healthcare on the South Shore.

The Police Assisted Addiction and Recovery Initiative (PAARI) and Bay State Community Services, Inc. will each receive $930,000 grants for their work targeting behavioral health patients, specifically in improving their access to medical care and services, housing, transportation, food and clothing and insurance.

"After a rigorous application and proposal process, these two non-profits were chosen because of their dedication, ingenuity and deep commitment to affect positive change for those in need," said Katrina Dwyer, RN, Director/Care Coordination and Community Benefits Officer for South Shore Health.

The combined $1.8 million Integrative Behavioral Health Grant is part of a larger $2.4 million sum made possible through South Shore Health. Of the total grant money, the Greater Brockton Health management of affordable and government-assisted housing.

The FHC is an integral component of the National Affordable Housing Management Association's (NAHMA) most prestigious designation, National Housing Professional (NAHP).

Shore reflects our organization's deep commitment to promoting good health within the community and by removing barriers to accessing behavioral healthcare for the most vulnerable among us," said Gene E. Green, MD, MBA, President & CEO, South Shore Health.

Banana Cookies

By MARIE

Whenever we have ripe bananas around the house we usually think of making banana bread. Today's recipe is for a delicious banana cookie made with oatmeal, another different way to use this ripened fruit.

Even though I bake oatmeal cookies sporadically, the combination of oatmeal and bananas is great!

Recipe and Directions:

Pre-heat oven to 400 degrees; grease a cookie sheet, or line with parchment paper.

Banana Cookies Ingredients

1/2 cups butter
1 cup of sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups of flour

1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

3/4 teaspoon cinnamon

1 cup mashed banana

1 cup oats

1/2 cup chopped nuts

Directions:

Cream together butter and sugar.
Add egg and vanilla.
Sift flour, soda, salt and spices. Stir into sugar mixture.
Add banana, oats and nuts.
Drop by teaspoons onto a greased cookie sheet.
Bake in a 400-degree oven for 12 minutes.
Cool on wire rack.

Healthy Rice Pudding

By SUSIE

Rice pudding is one of my favorite desserts:

Normally loaded with cow's milk, white sugar, and white rice (which means pretty much no nutrition or fiber.) This recipe takes the cake. Swapping the white rice for short grain brown rice (long grain will not get good results), real maple syrup (preferably Grade B), cinnamon (which modulates blood sugar) adding nuts (which add important monounsaturated fat, fiber, and minerals) and using coconut milk instead of cows milk (contains Lauric acid, a certain type of fat called MCT which your body loves) makes this dessert luscious and healthy.

RECIPE:

1 can organic coconut milk

Water (just enough to make the total liquid content 2 3/4 cups)

1 cup short grain brown rice

1/4 cup unsweetened dried shredded coconut

4 tablespoons maple syrup (the real stuff)

3/4 tsp cinnamon

1/2 tsp nutmeg

1/3 cup slivered almonds or pistachios (or any nut of choice)

Combine milk, water, rice, and coconut in medium sauce pan and bring to boil over high heat.

Reduce heat to low and stir. Cover and simmer about 50 minutes.

Stir in everything else except the nuts, until well combined. Cover and remove from heat. Let stand for 10 minutes.

Top with nuts. Serve hot or cold.

NeighborWorks Housing Solutions Awarded $250,000 From Wells Fargo

NeighborWorks Housing Solutions announces it has received a $250,000 grant from Wells Fargo to support the expansion of their programs and services across Southern Massachusetts.

NeighborWorks was selected 2018 as the fund distributor for the Greater Boston NeighborhoodLIFT program supported by Wells Fargo and NeighborWorks America. This program provided down payment assistance to 252 first-time home buyers who purchased in Norfolk, Middlesex, Suffolk, Plymouth and Essex counties in Massachusetts since June 2018 when the program launched.

"NeighborWorks was thrilled to be selected as the fund distributor for the Greater Boston NeighborhoodLIFT program," said Robert Corley, executive director of NeighborWorks Housing Solutions. "This program was incredibly beneficial to the families who are now homeowners; it also gave Wells Fargo the opportunity to learn about our mission and impact across Southern Massachusetts."

Last year, NeighborWorks provided homebuyer education to 1,144 clients, including 357 new homeowners, financial coaching to 950 clients, and provided down payment assistance to 255 individuals. This most recent grant award will go towards supporting these programs and their growth across the region.

"NeighborWorks Housing Solutions utilize their expertise, resources and capacity to most effectively address the state's housing affordability crisis," said Briana Curran, vice president, Community Relations & Communications, Wells Fargo. "By supporting their work, Wells Fargo is able to invest in these two leading community development organizations as they grow and help more individuals and families become homeowners. Congratulations to NeighborWorks Housing Solutions on their recent merger and all the great work ahead."

DA Morrissey Hosts Pediatric Safe Prescribing Conference

The Safe Prescribing Conference hosted by Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey in April was different from those he hosted for area clinicians in 2014 and 2017 – it catered to pediatricians, school nurses, and others who treat and deal with kids.

"We see very few high schoolers dying of opiate overdose, but we see a disturbing number of overdose victims whose addictions trace back to orthopedic injuries and other reasons for legal opiate prescriptions as teens," Morrissey said. "Addictions do not end in high school, but too many appear to begin there."

Morrissey welcomed about 170 to the April 23 conference, which was offered at no charge to pediatricians, family practitioners, pharmacists, public school nurses and high school athletic trainers practicing in Norfolk County – all of whom earned professional development and education credits through partner organizations.

Speakers included Dr. Nicholas Chadi from Children's Hospital, the first pediatric addiction fellow in North America, Robyn Houston-Bean, who lost her son to addiction, Dr. Christopher Gilligan, chief of the division of pain medicine at the Brigham and Women's Hospital, Sarah Fallon from the Board of Registration in Medicine, Daurice Cox, Psy.D, from Bay State Community Services; Sarah Fallon from the Mass Board of Registration in Medicine and Dr. Daniel Muse, of Signature Healthcare.

"These presenters are some of the leading voices

in understanding substance use disorder, how it starts and how to treat it," Morrissey said. "Physicians and other clinicians are natural allies in the struggle to stem the crisis of addiction. I was very pleased to have so many here to hear this."

Clinicians and law enforcement across the country are working to create and implement data-driven strategies to prevent substance use disorders, and to reduce the harm they cause to people and families, Morrissey said. As a regional law enforcement agency, part of our job of keeping people and communities safe is working on problems like the opiate epidemic," Morrissey said. "It is not just drug crimes driven by substance abuse – we see it in property crimes, violence, driving fatalities, even homicides. It is important to fight those problems at their root."

What Your Feet May Be Telling You About Your Health

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Your feet may be telling you something about your health.

Cold Feet

Are your feet and toes often chilly? Peripheral arterial disease (PAD), or poor circulation, may be the reason. PAD is commonly the result of an underlying disease, such as high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, hypothyroidism, hypercholesterolemia, or anemia. Smoking is also closely linked to PAD. Peripheral neuropathy (nerve damage) is another condition that may also make your feet feel cold.

Additionally, Raynaud's disease makes hands and feet appear blotchy and bluish in cold weather. This may be linked with rheumatoid arthritis, Sjögren's disease, or lupus, and is referred to as Raynaud's phenomenon.

Foot Pain

Statistics show that four out of five women complain of foot pain from their shoes, however there may be an underlying condition causing the problem. High heels or poorly fitting shoes can exacerbate everyday foot conditions such as bunions, neuromas, hammertoes, and ingrown toenails. Also, postmenopausal women can suffer from osteoporosis, which puts them at a higher risk for a stress fracture, a small crack in the bone.

Heel Pain

Plantar fasciitis is the most common cause of heel pain. The plantar fascia is a large, wide ligament at the bottom of the foot that attaches to the heel and can become inflamed. This results in a sharp pain in the heel, which may be most noticeable when taking your first steps in the morning or after sitting.

Other causes of heel pain are bone spurs, stress fractures, bone tumors, infections, bursitis, neuritis, and arthritis.

Dragging Your Feet

A variation in the way you walk may be the initial sign of an underlying medical condition. It may manifest itself as a slower or wider gait, imbalance, foot dragging, and tripping. One common cause is peripheral neuropathy, which is a slow loss of sensation that causes numbness and sometimes a burning sensation of the feet. Peripheral neuropathy is most commonly seen in diabetics but may also be a consequence of alcoholism, infection, vitamin deficiency, lower back nerve impingement, or exposure to heavy metals.

Clubbed Toes

Clubbing of the toes refers to the structural shape of the toes. The nails are curved and rounded at the top, somewhat like an upside-down spoon.

The most common underlying cause is lung disease or lung cancer. Other causes are heart defects present at birth, cystic fibrosis, celiac disease, liver disease, thyroid disease, and Hodgkin's lymphoma.

In some cases, clubbing of the toes may just be a family trait where no underlying disease exists.

Swollen Feet

Swelling of the feet may be temporary from prolonged standing or sitting in one position. In contrast, persistent swelling of the feet and legs maybe an indication of a serious underlying medical condition, including cardiovascular problems such as congestive heart failure, poor blood circulation, or venous insufficiency. It may also be a problem with one's lymphatic system. Other causes of swelling are infections (cellulitis), kidney or thyroid disorders, and even a blood clot in the leg.

Sores That Don't Heal

Sores on the feet that don't heal are concerning. The main causes are infection, repetitive abnormal pressure and poor circulation. Diabetics are particularly vulnerable to non-healing wounds of the feet because of their diminished sensation, circulation, and healing capabilities. In some cases, non-healing wounds are due to a foreign body or even a type of skin cancer. Non-healing wounds of the feet should be evaluated and treated promptly.

Pain in the Big Toe

The sudden onset of redness, pain, and swelling of the big toe joint is a classic example of gout. However, various conditions can present this way. They include osteoarthritis of the big toe joint, hallux bunion deformity, fracture, infection of the joint, or even an ingrown toenail.

Itchy Feet

The most common culprit of itchy feet is athlete's foot. This is a fungal infection called tinea pedis. It may emerge as a scaling red rash at the bottom of the feet and/or painful cracks in the skin between the toes.

Contact dermatitis is another common cause of itchy feet. It is precipitated by a reaction from chemicals, soaps, creams, or even socks and shoes. In most cases, obtaining the proper diagnosis and applying the appropriate topical creams can be effective in relieving the itch.

Foot Spasms

That sudden, sharp pain in the foot causing your toes to contract or spread most likely is a foot spasm. Foot spasms can be triggered by a variety of conditions, most typically from overuse and fatigue of the foot muscles as well as dehydration.

Other causes may be electrolyte imbalances in your body or deficiencies of magnesium, calcium, potassium, or vitamin D. Conditions that can affect hormone levels, such as pregnancy and thyroid disease, also may produce foot spasms. Keeping hydrated and wearing proper shoes can be helpful.

Yellow Toenails

Onychomycosis is a fungal infection of the nails that causes discoloration and thickening of the toenails and may result in yellow toenails. Other causes can be diseases such as lymphedema, arthritic conditions, lung disease, or even repetitive trauma to the nails from tight shoe gear and athletic activities.

Pitting of the Nails

Nail pitting is most frequently seen in people who suffer from psoriasis. Approximately 50% of people who suffer from psoriasis will experience this condition. Trauma to the nail growth plate or nail bed can also result in a pitted appearance with ridges. Sarcoidosis and bacterial and/or fungal infections may also cause pitting of the toenails.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Massachusetts Opioid-Related Overdose Death Rate Falls 4%

The opioid-related overdose death rate in Massachusetts continues to decline, falling an estimated four percent between 2016 and 2018, according to updated figures released last week in the latest quarterly opioid-related overdose deaths report by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

For the first three months of 2019, preliminary data shows 497 confirmed and estimated opioid-related overdose deaths.

According to the report, there were 39 opioid-related overdose deaths in Quincy in 2018 compared to 40 in 2017. There were 38, 47 and 45 deaths in 2014, 2015 and 2016 respectively in Quincy.

The decline in opioid-related overdose deaths is occurring despite the persistent presence of the deadly synthetic opioid fentanyl. In 2018, fentanyl was present in the toxicology of 89 percent of those who died of an opioid-related overdose and had a toxicology screen. The presence of some stimulants such as cocaine and amphetamines has also been increasing in opioid-related overdose deaths since 2017, while the presence of heroin or likely heroin in opioid-related overdose deaths has been declining since 2014.

In 2018, the total number of confirmed and estimated opioid-related overdose deaths was 2,033. That's 17 fewer deaths than the 2,050 confirmed and estimated in 2017. By comparison, there were 2,100 confirmed opioid-related overdose deaths in 2016.

Among the findings of the latest opioid report are:

- Although the presence of fentanyl in opioid-related overdose deaths continues to rise, the 2018 opioid-related overdose death rate (29.4 per 100,000 people) is an estimated 4 percent decrease from 2016 (30.6 per 100,000 people).
- The percentage of opioid-related overdose deaths where prescription drugs were present trended downward from 2014 through 2016 and has remained stable since then. In the fourth quarter of 2018, approximately 13 percent of opioid-related overdose deaths had prescription opioids present in toxicology.
- Since 2017, the presence of some stimulants such as cocaine and amphetamines in opioid-related overdose deaths has been increasing. In the fourth quarter of 2018, cocaine was present in about 39 percent of these deaths and amphetamines were present in approximately 9 percent.

• The confirmed opioid-related overdose death rates for females of all races and ethnicities increased in 2018 compared with 2017, while the death rates for males of all races and ethnicities decreased during the same period. However, males comprised 72 percent of all opioid related overdose deaths in 2018.

• The confirmed opioid-related overdose death rate for non-Hispanic black men decreased from 2017 to 2018 and returned to a similar rate as seen in 2016.

However, the death rate among Hispanic men remains virtually unchanged since 2016.

• In the first quarter of 2019 there were just over 518,000 Schedule II opioid prescriptions reported to the Massachusetts Prescription Monitoring Program (MassPAT); this is a notable decrease from the previous quarter and a 39 percent decrease from the first quarter of 2015, when there were 841,990 Schedule II opioid prescriptions.

• In the first quarter of 2019, registered MassPAT providers conducted approximately 1.86 million searches, which represented an increase of approximately 90,000 searches since the previous quarter.

• Roughly 239,000 individuals in Massachusetts received prescriptions for Schedule II opioids in the first quarter of 2019; this is nearly a 39 percent decrease from the first quarter of 2015, when there were 390,532 individuals receiving these prescriptions.

• In 2018, the greatest number of suspected opioid-related overdoses treated by Emergency Medical Services (EMS) continued to be among males ages 25-34, accounting for 25 percent of opioid-related incidents with a known age and gender.

Paul Bregoli Seeking 3rd School Committee Term

Two-term Quincy School Committee member Paul Bregoli, a long-time educator in the City of Quincy, announces he plans to run for a third term.

Bregoli, who spent 34 years as a teacher and guidance counselor in Quincy, was the top vote getter in the 2015 School Committee election.

During his most recent term, Bregoli served as vice-chairman of the School Committee for two years and is a member of the Sterling Middle School Building Committee. He also serves as the chairman of the Policy Sub-Committee and is also a member of the Facilities and Security Sub-Committee and Finance Sub-Committee.

"I am a candidate again because I feel I still have more to give the children and members of this community," Bregoli said in his announcement. "During the next four years, there will, in all likelihood, be a new superintendent of schools chosen. I feel my experience in the school system as well as my experience on the School Committee for the past 7 1/2 years, allows me to have a unique perspective in the selection of the next superintendent.

"The school system has been under the excellent leadership of Dr. DeCristofaro. The choice of the next superintendent is critical in maintaining the excellence of the city's school system. I feel I have the experience and qualifications to assist in that choice."

During his first two terms in office, Bregoli said he has been instrumental in affecting positive changes in the schools. He advocated for stricter academic standards for student-athletes, pushed for health educators and athletic trainers be added at both high schools. At his urging, an additional attendance officer was hired to help with the exclusion of non-resident students from attending the Quincy schools. Middle school sports, including wrestling, swimming and tennis, have been added as after school activities for students.

At his suggestion, the elementary school report card was redesigned making it more helpful and useful for both parents and teachers in evaluating students. At Bregoli's urging, an Athletic Sub-Committee was established. In addition, Bregoli suggested panic buttons be installed at each of the front desks at each school.

Bregoli will officially kick off his campaign with a fundraiser at The Neighborhood Club of Quincy on Wednesday, June 5 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Peter Coleman will remain as campaign manager and Bregoli's son, Christopher, will continue as treasurer.

AMAC Warns Of More Social Security Phone Scams

Robocall Social Security Administration scams are on the rise. The Federal Trade Commission [FTC] says SSA telephone shake-downs specifically targeting senior citizens now surpass phony IRS calls, according to the Association of Mature American Citizens (AMAC).

For the past few years fake IRS calls topped the list of complaints received by the FTC. "But the new SSA scam is trending in the same direction – with a vengeance. People filed over 76,000 reports about Social Security imposters in the past 12 months, with reported losses of $19 million," according to the FTC.

AMAC president Dan Weber notes that at its peak, between October 2015 and September 2016, losses from IRS scams reached $17 million. Meanwhile, in just two months, February and March of this year, the FTC received some 36,000 complaints from individuals who received Social Security calls. And, $6.7 million in reported losses were logged.

Weber says that "these con men are 'phishing' for Social Security numbers that can be used to commit all kinds of online crime. They can use stolen SS accounts to take out loans in your name, leaving you holding the bag. In addition, while they are at it, they often try to extort money from you. Meanwhile, the solution is quite simple – just hang up."

In addition, AMAC advises that if you get such a phone call don't fall for the scam even if your caller ID shows that the Social Security Administration is calling you. The SSA does not make threats. In fact, you should never give out your SS number, your bank account number or any such sensitive personal information to anyone who calls you out of the blue – especially

Wollaston Could Get Taproom, 75 Residential Units

By SCOTT JACKSON

A developer is proposing a mixed-use project on Beale Street in Wollaston Center featuring 75 residential units and four storefronts, including one that could house a brewery, taproom and restaurant.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes will host a public meeting on the plan at 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 30, inside the auditorium at Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St.

The developer, Eric Zhang of Bayfort Holdings LLC, owns the properties at 21-29 Beale St., 51-55 Cushing St. and 65-67 Chapman St. The properties contain about 28,000 square feet of space and are located within a business C zoning district, according to Zhang's attorney, Edward Fleming. The existing retail building on Beale Street would be razed, along with the four-family houses at 55 Cushing St. and 65 Chapman St.

The new building would include four storefronts along Beale Street, a two-story parking garage in the rear of the site, and 75 residential units on the upper floors. The retail spaces would range in size from 963 square feet to 6,125 square feet, Fleming said. That would include a two-story retail unit, with a full basement, on the corner of Beale and Chapman Streets that could house a potential brewery, taproom and restaurant.

The building would range in height from four stories in the rear to seven stories along Beale Street, Fleming said. It would include an exterior courtyard, a fitness facility that would offer memberships to the community and a meeting room. The proposal also includes widened sidewalks along Beale Street.

The project would require approval from the Planning Board and Zoning Board of Appeals.

Zhang's proposal is the second for Wollaston Center unveiled in recent weeks. Miao Kun "Michael" Fang in April released plans to build a six-story, 63-unit residential building at 10 Beale St., which was formerly home to the Wollaston Theater.

Fang's proposal was panned by residents at a community meeting April 25. Residents at that meeting said the plan should include a retail component given the building's location in a business district.

Financial Career

Fair Thursday

Quincy Community Action Program's Financial REACH Center, in collaboration with Quincy Asian Resources (QARD), will host a South Shore Financial Career Fair on Thursday, May 23, from noon to 2 p.m.

Representatives from South Shore area financial employers are looking to hire for a variety of positions. Participants can also get information about local financial training programs and community programs.

The career fair will be held on the second floor at 1509 Hancock St. in Quincy.

Interested individuals can register by contacting Theresa Whittaker by phone at 617-657-5355 or by email at twwhittaker@qcap.org.

What Social Security Benefit Will My Wife Get If I Die?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I am 69 and have been holding off on collecting my Social Security payment until I'm 70 on the assumption that my wife would collect my benefit if I died first. My thought was that she would collect the monthly benefit I will earn at age 70 in the event of my death. Now a Social Security employee is telling me she would only be entitled to what my benefit would have been at age 66 (my full retirement age). That is about an $800 drop in monthly benefits from what I thought it would be. My wife is a year younger than me, much healthier than I am, has mostly worked part time and she started collecting her SS at age 62 and gets about $700 a month. So, is the Social Security employee correct? Signed: Concerned Husband

Dear Concerned: The Social Security employee you spoke with might have misunderstood your question. It sounds like the answer you were given pertained to the benefit your wife is entitled to as your spouse while you are living, which is based upon your "primary insurance amount," or "PIA" (your PIA is the amount you were due at your full retirement age, or "FRA").

When you claim your increased benefit at age 70 your wife can apply for her spousal benefit, which will be based on your FRA benefit amount (not the increased amount you'll get by waiting until age 70 to claim). She gets that spousal benefit if it is more than she is receiving on her own work record, which from what you've told me it will be. What actually happens is that she will continue to get her own benefit and she will also get a supplemental amount to make her total Social Security benefit equal to what she is entitled to as your spouse. That amount will be a bit less than half of your FRA benefit because she took her own benefit at age 62 (claiming Social Security early doesn't only affect one's own benefit, it affects their spousal benefit also). The spousal benefit your wife gets when you claim at age 70 will continue for as long as you are living.

But the Social Security benefit rules are different for your wife as your widow and your survivor. If you predecease your wife, her spousal benefit from your work record, as described above, will discontinue and she will be switched to her survivor's benefit. That survivor's benefit will be 100% of the benefit amount you were receiving at your death, instead of the lower amount she was receiving as your spouse when you were living. So, your original assumption is correct – as your widow your wife will get 100% of the increased benefit you were receiving when you pass. The Social Security employee was incorrect by telling you that, if you pass, your wife will only get what you were due at your full retirement age; instead she'll get the full amount of your current Social Security benefit (your full age 70 benefit, plus any COLA adjustments made after your claim).

remain in formation during the ceremonies.

The parade will rest at Quincy Square and wreaths will be placed on the tombs of John and John Quincy Adams. The parade marshal and honor guests will review the parade at Sea Street opposite the cemetery.

Peter Walsh, the commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, is the marshal for this year's parade. George Nicholson, the chairman of the city's Veterans Services Department, is the parade chairman and George Bouchard, the department's graves registration officer, is co-chairman. Leo Reardon and Marc Connolly, both past commanders of the Quincy Veterans Council, are the officer of the day and sergeant-at-arms, respectively.

Organizations and officials taking part in the parade include:

Quincy Police Honor Guard; Quincy Fire Honor Guard; Quincy Veterans Council Color Guard; Walsh and the council's senior and junior vice commanders, Robert LaFleur and Charles Hurd; U.S. Coast Guard Honor Guard; Mayor Thomas Koch and other city and state officials; the Pathfinders Marching Band; Second Marine Division Firing Squad; Cyril P. Morrisette Post 294 AL; VFW Post 613; Windjammers Marching Band; Robert I. The ceremony will take place immediately following the parade. Speakers will address the assembled crowd from the World War II memorial inside the cemetery overlooking Sea Street.

Coast Guard Commander Derek Smith is the keynote speaker for the ceremony. Other speakers include Koch, Nicholson, Walsh, City Council President Brad Croall, the Rev. John Swanson, the QVC's chaplain, and Lawrence Norton, who will be the master of ceremonies for the observance.

Jenna Sleiman, a 19-year-old from the Vista Volunteer Program, will lead the crowd in the Pledge of Allegiance. Jennifer Blackmore will sing the "Star-Spangled Banner" and Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes will sing "Amazing Grace."

LaFleur will read Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and Hurd will read Gen. John Logan's 1868 order proclaiming Decoration Day, the forerunner to Memorial Day. Fred McCray will read the World War I poem "In Flanders Fields" and Isabella Carinci, a student at Point Webster Middle School, will read the governor's Memorial Day proclamation.

Smith has served as the executive officer for Coast Guard Base Cape Cod since June 2018. Smith is responsible for all mission support functions for Cape Cod and pay and personnel functions for the entire first district, which includes New England, eastern New York and northern New Jersey.

Mediation Next Step In EPA Suit, Mayor Says

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy and the Environmental Protection Agency are likely headed back to the bargaining table as the next step in the federal lawsuit brought against the city for alleged violations of the Clean Water Act, Mayor Thomas Koch said in a recent interview.

The mayor also discussed Boston's plan to build a new bridge to Long Island and Quincy's goal of launching a year-round ferry service from Squantum Point Park.

Andrew Lelling, the U.S. attorney for the District of Massachusetts, announced the filing of the federal lawsuit in March. Lelling and the EPA allege the city has been allowing sewage and untreated wastewater to discharge into Boston Harbor and adjoining waterways for the past decade, in violation of the Clean Water Act.

Koch, who is fighting the lawsuit, said in a recent interview he anticipates a judge will send the two sides to mediation; officials from the city and the EPA had been at the table for a year discussing the matter prior to the filing of the federal lawsuit.

The mayor reiterated he would not sign a consent decree requiring the city to commit tens of millions of dollars or more to sewer and drain projects.

"I expect a judge to say, 'can't you guys work this out?' I expect that probably at some point we'll be in some kind of mediation process and that's the approach," Koch said.

"I don't see myself signing a consent decree committing the city to $100 to $200 million over the next ten years that we don't necessarily have. We're spending $4 to $6 million a year now on sewer and drainage upgrades. We're not a community that's ignored this issue."

Koch said his administration and his predecessors' administrations have long understood the importance of protecting the waters surrounding Quincy. The city, he noted, brought the lawsuit against the state that lead to the cleanup of Boston Harbor.

"What really goes up my keister is the EPA is so arrogant to come out with their judgement on communities. We don't need the EPA to tell us what's important to us," Koch said. "If you look back, not just this administration, you go back to Mayor Phelan, Mayor Sheets, Mayor McCauley – it was Mayor McCauley's administration that sued the MDC that started the creation of the MWRA which led to the Boston Harbor cleanup.

"The waters we swim in today are 100 times cleaner than when we were kids and we didn't know any better. So, we've come a long way and we continue to spend money every year."

Koch, who spoke to a group of municipal officials gathered to discuss environmental issues prior to the interview, said the EPA formerly partnered with local communities but no longer does so.

"If you look back to the '60s and '70s and even into the early '80s, the EPA was a partner with communities, and they used to offer 75 percent reimbursement to do projects. Then, it kind of turned, crossed this threshold, and they became like a law enforcement agency and it became us versus them rather than government levels collaborating with each other. It's unfortunate," Koch said.

"I spoke today about how I believed when I was brought up there were three branches of government, but today there are four – the fourth being bureaucracy. They don't answer to anybody. I've said it respectively to Congressman Lynch and former congressman Delahunt that Congress has given its power away. A congressman has to scream and holler now to get a meeting with an EPA rep about something in their district. In the old days, when they spoke the agencies jumped; they represent the people and the agencies ought to jump. Now, the arrogance, particularly of the EPA, in my opinion is way out of control."

"The issue for traffic wasn't for the bridge construction. The issue for traffic is once the bridge goes up, the amount of traffic that will go through Quincy to get to Long Island. That's been the sticking point," he said.

Boston has not yet shared plans for the recovery campus that would be located on Long Island, Koch said. Quincy officials are concerned about future development once the bridge opens.

"We still don't know what the plan is," Koch said. "They talk about a campus for folks in need battling addiction and I'm all in favor, but what does that mean? Are we talking about overnight beds? Are we talking about detox? Are we talking about people in transition where they have a place to live and go into work each day? I don't know what that means."

"That has implications, what it means. If people are driving to and from Long Island every day and you've got 600 to 800 patients out there and they are driving, that's going to be a hell of traffic impact to the people of Squantum. You've still got another 100 acres on that island that down the road could be developed, and the only access point is the bridge."

If Walsh were to give assurances the island would not be opened up for development, Koch said that might not be enough because a future Boston mayor might not have to honor that commitment.

"I guess I would say to that, who is the mayor after the two sides will come to any agreement regarding the bridge.

"I see Marty at Metro Mayor's meetings. There are other issues we're working together on – housing issues in the Metro Boston area, traffic improvements – so it's not a one-issue relationship we have. There are other things we talk about," Koch said. "We're not going to see eye-to-eye on this one. We're just not."

"Working something out means for me to agree to the bridge... I just can't see myself doing that," Koch added.

Boston has said it would take steps to minimize the impact on Squantum during construction of the new bridge. Barges would be used to bring pieces of the bridge to the site, for example, though construction workers would still have to drive through Quincy streets to get to the site.

Koch said his concern is about traffic that would be generated once the bridge is open.

"The issue for traffic wasn't for the bridge construction. The issue for traffic is once the bridge goes up, the amount of traffic that will go through Quincy to get to Long Island. That's been the sticking point," he said.

Boston has not yet shared plans for the recovery campus that would be located on Long Island, Koch said. Quincy officials are concerned about future development once the bridge opens.

"We still don't know what the plan is," Koch said. "They talk about a campus for folks in need battling addiction and I'm all in favor, but what does that mean? Are we talking about overnight beds? Are we talking about detox? Are we talking about people in transition where they have a place to live and go into work each day? I don't know what that means."

"That has implications, what it means. If people are driving to and from Long Island every day and you've got 600 to 800 patients out there and they are driving, that's going to be a hell of traffic impact to the people of Squantum. You've still got another 100 acres on that island that down the road could be developed, and the only access point is the bridge."

If Walsh were to give assurances the island would not be opened up for development, Koch said that might not be enough because a future Boston mayor might not have to honor that commitment.

"I guess I would say to that, who is the mayor after Marty Walsh, and will they live up to that. I don't know that he can tie a future mayor to such an agreement," Koch said.

Boston has said the bridge would cost $92 million to build, which the city would fund on its own. Boston plans to re-use most of the pilings that supported the old Long Island Bridge, which opened to traffic in 1951.

Koch said he believes the bridge will cost more than Boston's projections and the money would be better spent building a recovery campus on the mainland.

"I still argue that the bridge is going to be $150 million, not $93 million, and that those buildings out there, which go back to the '20s, need everything," Koch said. "If the city of Boston can find the hundreds of millions of dollars needed to bring that place back, I would think on the mainland their dollars would go a lot further and have an immediate impact on people that need it now."

"I think Marty Walsh is a good guy – I certainly have great respect for Marty as a colleague – but I don't believe in warehousing people out on an island. I just don't think that's the approach."

If Boston does open the campus on Long Island, Koch said ferries would be a less expensive way to transport people back and forth. He noted a 2002 study commissioned by then Boston Mayor Thomas Menino backed the use of a ferry to access Long Island.

"They made a case the ferry would be more expensive over time," Koch said of Walsh's administration.

"I don't buy that. Menino had a report when he was mayor that showed the ferry was the way to go for the future of the island."

"You've got Thompson Island – how do they get to and from there? You've got youth problems there all the time. There is no road or bridge. They take a ferry."

Quincy is partnering with

Georges Island – there is all kinds of activity out there – they take a ferry.

"I just don't buy it. I don't know why they're so stubborn on it, I really don't, unless they have a bigger plan for that island."

Quincy has partnered with the town of Winthrop since the summer of 2016 to offer a seasonal ferry from Squantum Point Park near Marina Bay to downtown Boston. Koch has said the seasonal ferry could be the first step in starting a year-round service between Squantum Point Park and Boston.

"The program we have ongoing is a pilot program with the town of Winthrop – it's their boat. It just keeps it alive," Koch said. "If people are going to change habits – and habits are tough to change – I think they want it more dependable, year-round and more options for times. I think once we get to that point, you'll see it grow."

"Hingham wasn't a huge hit right off the bat. It took a few years before people bought into it and relied on it and enjoyed it. It's not a bad gig to jump on a boat and read a book while you're not having to worry about the traffic or fighting through the turnstile at the train station."

Koch said the non-profit's report supports Quincy position seeking the new ferry service.

"Boston Harbor Now released that business plan that showed Quincy should be one of three locations in Boston Harbor for permanent ferry service. That was an objective outside group putting that together. It backs up what we've been saying," Koch said.

"I'm hopeful that we'll get to the point at some point one of these years where there is a permanent, year-round ferry service operating out of Marina Bay. We are applying for some federal funding to completely rebuild the pier and deal with some of those ADA issues."

"But you've got an 800-car parking lot right there. You've got deep water right there. The Marina is there. The pier is there – it needs some work, but the pier is there. We're not re-inventing the wheel here. It would be a great starting point."

The city is now working to extend Commander Shea Boulevard to Squantum Point Park; the MBTA is paying for that work as part of the mitigation package for its ongoing work at Wollaston and North Quincy stations. The work will be done this summer.

Nathan Sampson Selected For Youth Football Bowl Game

Nathan Sampson of Quincy, a seventh grade student at the Sterling Middle School, has been selected for the National team at the USA Football Middle School Bowl Game at Tom Benson Hall of Fall Stadium.

Sampson, a defensive back, was named MVP at the regionals and will be suiting up for the National team for the second consecutive year. He will be representing the city playing at the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, OH June 29.

U.S. National Team alumni include Todd Gurley, Dwayne Haskins, N'Keal Harry, Jameis Winston and Tyrann Mathieu.

Winthrop on the seasonal ferry on a year-to-year basis, Koch said. More people would likely ride the ferry if it ran year-round – Winthrop's ferry can't, because it has a fiberglass hull – and if its schedule had better departure and arrival times for commuters riding to and from Quincy.

"Boston Harbor Now released that business plan that showed Quincy should be one of three locations in Boston Harbor for permanent ferry service. That was an objective outside group putting that together. It backs up what we've been saying," Koch said.

"I think people who might jump on that are people that are now coming up through our city on 3A or people that live here...

I don't see that as a major problem. Perhaps it's people on Quincy Shore Drive who say, 'you know what, I'm going to go out to the Marina,' because the Neponset Bridge is very difficult in the morning to get over, so they're already here in my view," Koch said.

The city is now working to extend Commander Shea Boulevard to Squantum Point Park; the MBTA is paying for that work as part of the mitigation package for its ongoing work at Wollaston and North Quincy stations. The work will be done this summer.

wherever we can."

Marathas would prefer the new building be used for elderly housing, though it could be used for family housing instead.

"It depends on who answers the RFP," he responded when asked if it would be for elderly or family housing. "We're trying to gear it towards elderly, because that is where there is a tremendous, tremendous need and we have all the resources. We have the support services in place. We have everything in place to be able to accommodate them."

Marathas said he would like to see a 70-unit building in Wollaston, plus another 16 family units in the vicinity of O'Brien Towers on Bicknell Street in Germantown.

"If I had my way, there would be a 70-unit building in the back of 80 Clay St. I'm going to hopefully be proposing to build 16 new family units," on the vacant lot near O'Brien Towers, Marathas said.

The RFP for 80 Clay St. could be released this year, with construction starting in 2020, he said.

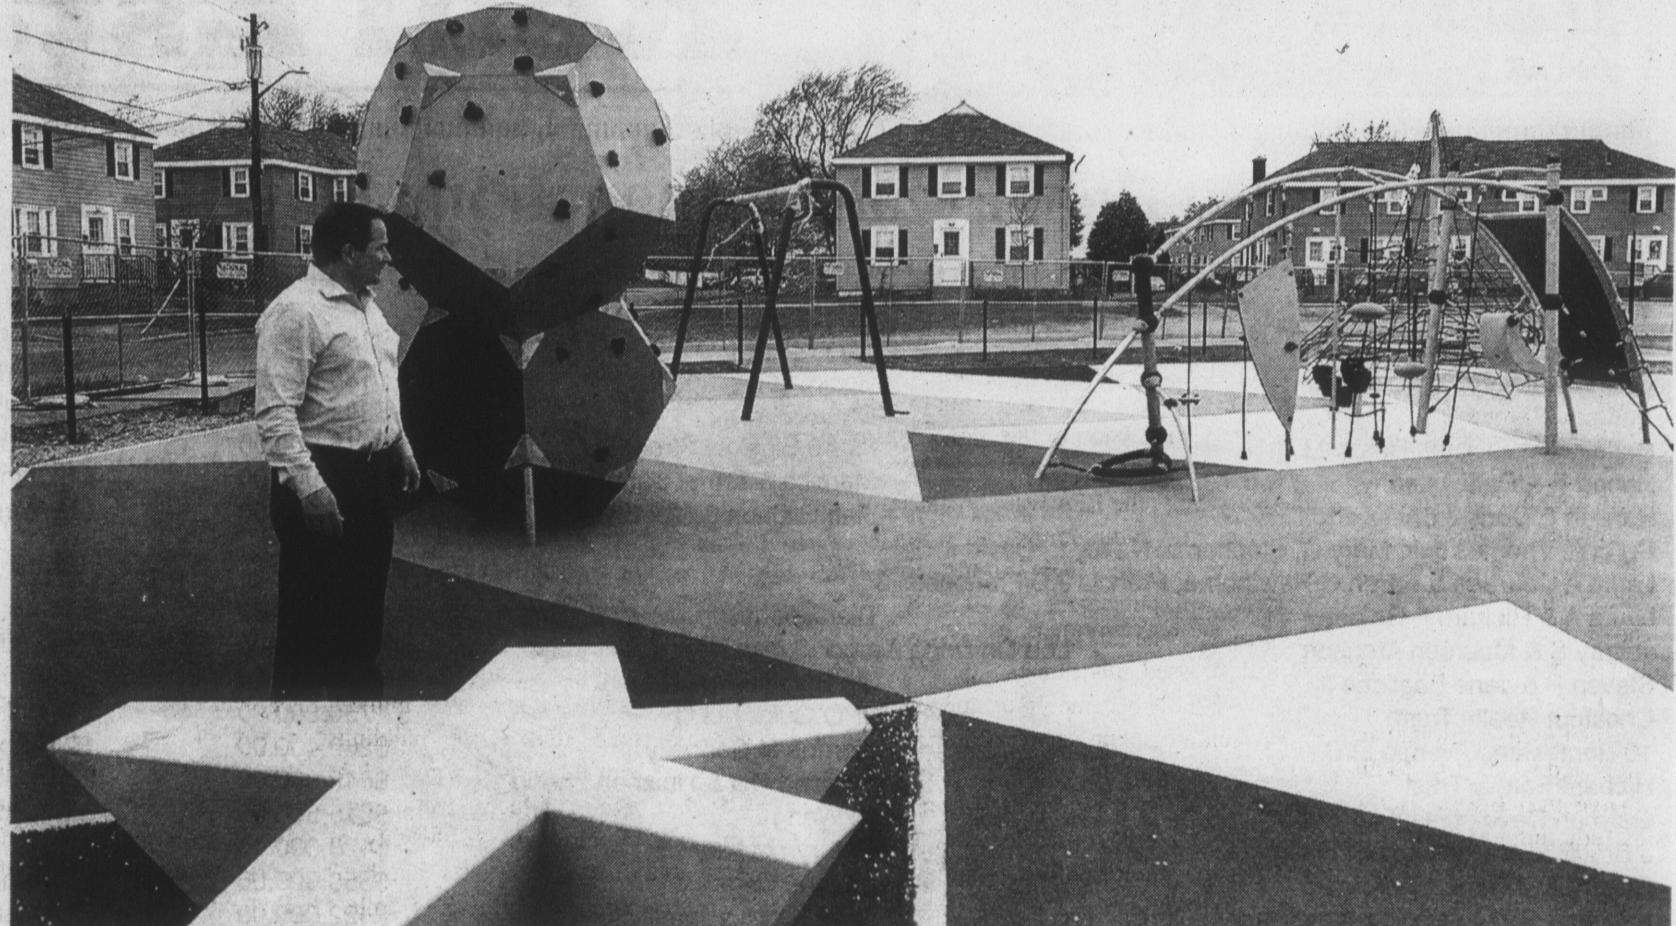

The Housing Authority operates 1,600 units of family and elderly/disabled housing in 10 properties located throughout the city. Each property is funded by the state or federal government.

The agency's units are 99.8 percent occupied, Marathas said. QHA's employees work to turn over the units as quickly as they can, he said, noting two units of family housing on Bicknell Street damaged in a January fire will re-open this summer.

"We are running around 99.8 percent occupancy, turning over units as quickly as we possibly can. The two units that were damaged in the fire, those are scheduled to come back online in the next month or so. Those were rebuilt and coming back online," Marathas said.

Some 7,000 people are on waiting lists to get into Housing Authority properties.

"Looking to get in now, for a Quincy resident, is up to five or seven years for elderly. Probably 20 plus years if you didn't live in Quincy. Then for family...if you were a Quincy resident and you're given a preference on the family side, it's probably five plus years. The waiting list was closed for 10 years. We only just recently opened it," Marathas said. "Altogether, we've got about 7,000 people on the waiting list."

"It's a challenge. There is a huge, huge need and we have limited resources."

Each housing authority across Massachusetts is capped at a certain number of units, Marathas explained, and Quincy's is at its cap.

"Housing authorities are capped at the number of units that they can actually manage. We're at our threshold," he said. "The only way we can create new affordable housing is by doing it under a non-profit. So, we can create a new non-profit with a new board of directors and create new affordable housing through that non-profit, and that's kind of the route that we're going to be looking to go."

The three new fully accessible units at Sawyer Towers, located at 95 Martensen St. in Quincy Point, officially opened early this month and residents were able to move in. The Housing Authority received $250,000 from the state Department of Housing and Community Development and $180,000 from Quincy's Affordable Housing Trust Fund to create the new units at Sawyer Towers, plus three family units in Snug Harbor that opened previously.

"Together, those two agencies funded the Quincy Housing Authority to build three new fully handicapped accessible units at Sawyer Towers, where there is a building with 150 units and no handicap units," Marathas said. "So, this added the first three fully accessible units to that build-

Memorial Day Grill Safety Tips From PGANE

While gas grills, portable fire pits, and patio heaters make outdoor spaces comfortable places to gather over summer holidays, it's important that they are used properly.

Before firing up the propane grill for Memorial Day, the Propane Gas Association of New England (PGANE) offers the following tips to help homeowners get the most from their outdoor appliances safely:

1. Follow the manufacturer's instructions. Whether it's assembly, use, maintenance, cleaning, or storage, make your grill manufacturer's instructions your go-to resource for safe grilling.

2. Position the grill in a safe location. Keep your grill outdoors and at least five feet from the house on a level surface that is clear of outdoor furniture, overhead trees, or other potential fire hazards.

3. Check for leaks. Use a soapy water solution to check connections for leaks.

Expanding bubbles indicate a leak. Follow this procedure at the start of each season and every time you replace a cylinder.

4. Follow proper lighting procedures. Follow the manufacturer's lighting instructions. With all grill models, keep the lid open and don't lean over the grill when lighting it.

5. Follow proper re-lighting procedures. If your flame goes out, turn off the gas and refer to your owner's manual. At a minimum, with all grill models, keep the lid open and wait at least 15 minutes before relighting.

6. Keep propane outdoors. Remember that propane tanks should NEVER be stored indoors or in an enclosed area such as a basement, garage or shed.

7. Be present. Stay close and never leave your grill unattended.

Safety for Kids – The grilling area should also be designated as a "No Play Zone," keeping kids and pets away from the equipment. To help kids learn about gas grill safety, the Propane Education & Research Council has launched the fun interactive website www.propanekids.com.

IN THE LATE 1990s, the home on Burgin Parkway was named after Sheila McIntyre, who passed away April 14 at the age of 87. Mrs. McIntyre, wife of the late former mayor and state senator James R. McIntyre, dedicated much of her time and energy to helping those in Quincy and beyond who needed a helping hand.

ing, which was desperately needed. We have a list of tenants waiting to transfer to fully accessible that need them that are in wheelchairs or have physical limitations...and we just don't have enough.

"This funding was extremely helpful to us."

The new units are located on the first floor of Sawyer Towers in space previously used by QHA's finance department. Those offices were moved to Tobin Towers, where the remainder of QHA's administrative offices are located.

Each of the new one-bedroom units at Sawyer Towers includes about 600 square feet of living space. They are designed for tenants who use wheelchairs.

"They're beautiful," Marathas said of the three units. "They have white cabinets. They have hard surface Corian countertops. They're big. The doorways are big. The showers you just roll right into. They're awesome."

The Housing Authority recently contracted with Rainbow Adult Day Health Care, which will construct and operate the adult day care at O'Brien Towers inside the community room there. The company will also run a shuttle so tenants of other QHA properties can use the new space.

"Some really exciting news – we just awarded an RFP to create a new adult daycare center. It's going to be at O'Brien Towers," Marathas said. "They are going to build a new facility at O'Brien Towers, which will offer nurse services, doctor services, massage rooms, yoga classes, lunch every day. It's going to really bump up the services to the tenants."

"And they are going to have a shuttle that goes around to all of our properties every day and pick people up and bring them to that adult health care center that is going to be at O'Brien Towers."

QHA has received a $500,000 grant from DHCD to modernize the elevators at Tobin Towers. The agency also refinanced a federal bond and borrowed an extra $2 million, which will allow for modernization of elevators at O'Brien Towers and Pagano Towers on Curtis Avenue in Quincy Point, plus the creation of five fully accessible units at O'Brien Towers.

Marathas said the last elevator work in those buildings took place about 30 years ago. The company that did that work is no longer in business, which makes repairing the elevators difficult.

"When they did it 30 years ago, they used a company that went out of business, so the parts are no longer available and the support for programming is no longer available. Whenever anything happens, we have to have the part manufactured...and we have to have someone come in and try to adapt it to a component that doesn't belong," Marathas said. "It's a process every time one breaks. It's broken for a period of time because we have to manufacture the part, we have to get someone in to program it, we have to get someone in to adapt it, and it's just not that easy."

"People think the elevator goes down and we're not doing anything about it. We're working 24-7 to get the thing back up and running, but it's just not that easy."

It could take about a year before the new elevator work is completed, Marathas said. One elevator in each of the buildings will be worked on at a time, with the other elevator remaining in service.

"There are state procurement laws and there are regulations we have to follow," Marathas said. "The first thing we have to do is hire a designer. The designer will design the new components so hopefully they're not components that are going to be gone five years from now and they are going to be something that is available for a long period of time."

"Then, it will go out to bid. It legally has to be procured, so we will put it out to bid and the bid response time is probably a month or two. Then we will award it and they will order the equipment and then they'll start the process."

"The only negative thing is, there is always going to be one elevator down while that one is being rebuilt. So, for a period of six months to a year, all three buildings are pretty much going to have one elevator down while it is being modernized."

The Housing Authority is in the process of completing three projects in Germantown, which should be completed by the end of June.

The agency received a grant from the state Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs last year for two playgrounds in Snug Harbor. The Jean Kennedy Playground will be replaced with a half basketball court and a brand-new playground area. A new splash pad and basketball court will open on Taffrail Road, where a basketball court is now located.

"We've got two new playgrounds – a $1.2 million project. They are both going to be ready to open at the end of June," Marathas said. "Both parks are going to come online the end of [June], which is going to be the splash pad, two basketball courts, the Jean Kennedy Playground and the Taffrail Playground."

The agency is also sprucing up the Palmer Street rotary, which is home to a 20-foot high memorial to Daniel Shed, the first English settler of what is today known as Germantown.

"The rotary going into Palmer Street is getting a $100,000 renovation," Marathas said. "It already got a new walkway, lighting. The monument's been unlit for years. We had the plaque all redone – the Daniel Shed memorial, that plaque is all redone. We're building a new light that's going to go on top of it. And the whole rotary is getting landscaped."

"That is coming to an end too. That will probably be the end of June also."

Marathas recently received an Extra Mile Award from Quincy Community Action Programs. The Housing Authority on Monday received an award from Massachusetts Chapter of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials for the services it provides to tenants. Those services include a food bank that provides food to every resident in the high-rise buildings on a monthly basis, support services for elderly residents, in-building health care at two of the high rises plus Manet Community Health Center's Snug Harbor location, a program that lets tenants in family housing put money into escrow that can be used to purchase a home, and the planned adult daycare center, among other initiatives.

"All that together got us recognized as a leader in support services in the housing authority industry," Marathas said.

On Monday, May 13 at approximately 5:30 p.m., members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit were conducting surveillance for drug activity in the area of Chubbuck Street due to community concerns.

At approximately 6 p.m., Detective O'Brien observed a vehicle park on Chubbuck Street. He was familiar with this particular vehicle and driver because it was involved in prior crack cocaine investigations. Approximately one minute later after the vehicle parked, Detective O'Brien observed a male wearing a black sweatshirt and jeans walk to the open front passenger window of the vehicle and lean on the open window. Seconds later, the male backed away from the vehicle with his right hand clenched as if he was holding something.

As the male walked towards Claremont Avenue, the vehicle drove off towards Washington Street. Detective O'Brien notified other nearby members of the Drug Control Unit of what he believed was a drug transaction. Detectives Donovan and O'Rourke encountered the male who was walking on Claremont Avenue while other detectives followed the suspect vehicle awaiting the results of the questioning of the male who was walking.

The detectives identified themselves as police officers to the walking suspect while displaying badges. They told him they believed a drug transaction just occurred and wanted to know the name of the suspect driver. He added if he (the suspect) was honest with them he would not be arrested.

The walking suspect stated he was a contractor and had just met someone regarding a job. Detective O'Rourke told him his statement was not believable because no one walks a block from their house in the rain and stays standing in the rain while talking to someone in a vehicle for seconds and then walk away regarding contracting work.

At this time, Detective O'Rourke gave the suspect his Miranda Warnings which he stated he understood. The walking suspect then stated he gave the driving suspect money that he owed him. All DCU members know this is a common statement made by buyers of narcotics to make when approached by the Police. When asked for the name of the driving suspect and how much money he gave him, he said, "You know him. Just keep following him and you will see something." The walking suspect was placed under arrest by Detective Donovan and after a pat down, a small knotted plastic bag containing crack cocaine was seized as evidence from his front jacket pocket.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

Detective Donovan radioed members of the DCU who were following the vehicle of the discovery. When the 64-year-old walking suspect, a Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for possessing cocaine, he became upset and stated, "I'm just a user. Why are you bothering me?"

During this time, K9 Officer Dabilis initiated a motor vehicle stop of the suspect vehicle at the intersection of Hancock Street and Russell Park, went to the drivers' door and led the driver/sole occupant from the vehicle. Detective Bossart gave him Miranda rights and inquired to the driver what he was doing. He said he was just driving around clearing his head because he was putting his dog down tomorrow.

Detective Bossart asked the driving suspect if he stopped anywhere or met with anyone which he adamantly denied. When told that he was observed meeting with someone, he said he stopped to ask for directions. Detectives then questioned him as to why he would stop at the side of the road without anyone being there and hope that someone would walk by to ask for directions. He said that he couldn't think.

Detective Cassidy learned that the driver, a 28-year-old Quincy resident, did not have a license so he was placed under arrest for Operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license and Distributing a Class B substance. Detective Bossart searched and found $51 in the suspect's wallet along with two cell phones. A passive search for narcotic odor was conducted of the suspect by K9 Officer Dabilis and his partner Karl. According to Officer Dabilis, Karl showed a positive alert for narcotic odor coming from the suspect, however, no drugs were found on him.

During booking, it was learned that the driving suspect had a prior guilty of operating after suspension charge in Lynn District Court in 2013. The walking suspect had a prior guilty for possession of a Class B substance in 1981.

Nice Work!

UPDATE ON A PAST "JOB WELL DONE": Back in November 2018, Officer Paul Foley made an arrest and notified Customs and Border Protection for help in locating the Identity theft victim who resided in Puerto Rico.

Excerpt from the November 2018 report: "The 36-year-old male from Roxbury was placed under arrest and transported to the station for booking on the charges of marked lanes, defective equipment, unlicensed operator of a motor vehicle, identity fraud, forgery, uttering, fraudulently obtaining a Mass. driver's license, false name to police, operating an unregistered/uninsured motor vehicle. The male uttered the same stolen identity when he was arrested by Medford Police in 2016 for possession with intent to distribute heroin and cocaine." Both of those charges are open out of Somerville District Court.

As of the typing of this report, Officer Foley reported the man's true identity remains unknown but it is suspected that he is an undocumented illegal alien from the Dominican Republic. Some 2,670 Dominican Pesos were observed in his wallet along with a credit card with the name of B Nunez Guerrero. The male also had a Florida driver's license with the same stolen SS number and date of birth but a different variation of the name (Carlos Miguel Esquilin Gonzalez). The male was released on $2,500 cash bail and is due back in court on Jan. 11, 2019.

ment of Veterans Affairs, at no cost to the city. Perchard gathered the information required for each soldier, Bouchard said, and he filed the applications with the VA.

"Linda got this started and then she handed it over to me to do the applications," he said.

Perchard said she, Bouchard and Scott Logan, the general foreman of the cemetery department, had been discussing the condition of the headstones when she decided to start her research. She used records from the city's cemetery and veterans' services departments and Ancestry.com to identify each grave.

Perchard said she and Bouchard have worked on other projects before, including the identification of veterans' graves at Hancock and Hall Place Cemeteries. Hancock Cemetery, she noted, has graves for veterans as far back as King Philip's War in the 1670s.

Perchard said she started doing research on veterans after her husband, Bob, was asked to speak at a memorial square dedication for George Underwood, who was killed in the Vietnam War, in 2012.

"From there it took off. I found it fascinating," she said of her research. "It was a challenge too."

Perchard has since provided the Veterans' Services Department with information on many of the Quincy veterans who have memorial squares dedicated in their honor.

"They're all sad stories, but it's nice to know their stories are there," she said.

Each new headstone weighs 240 pounds and sits about four feet off the ground once put in place. The cemetery department began replacing the headstones earlier this month, and Bouchard said they would all be in place in time for Memorial Day, the federal holiday that was established in the wake of the Civil War.

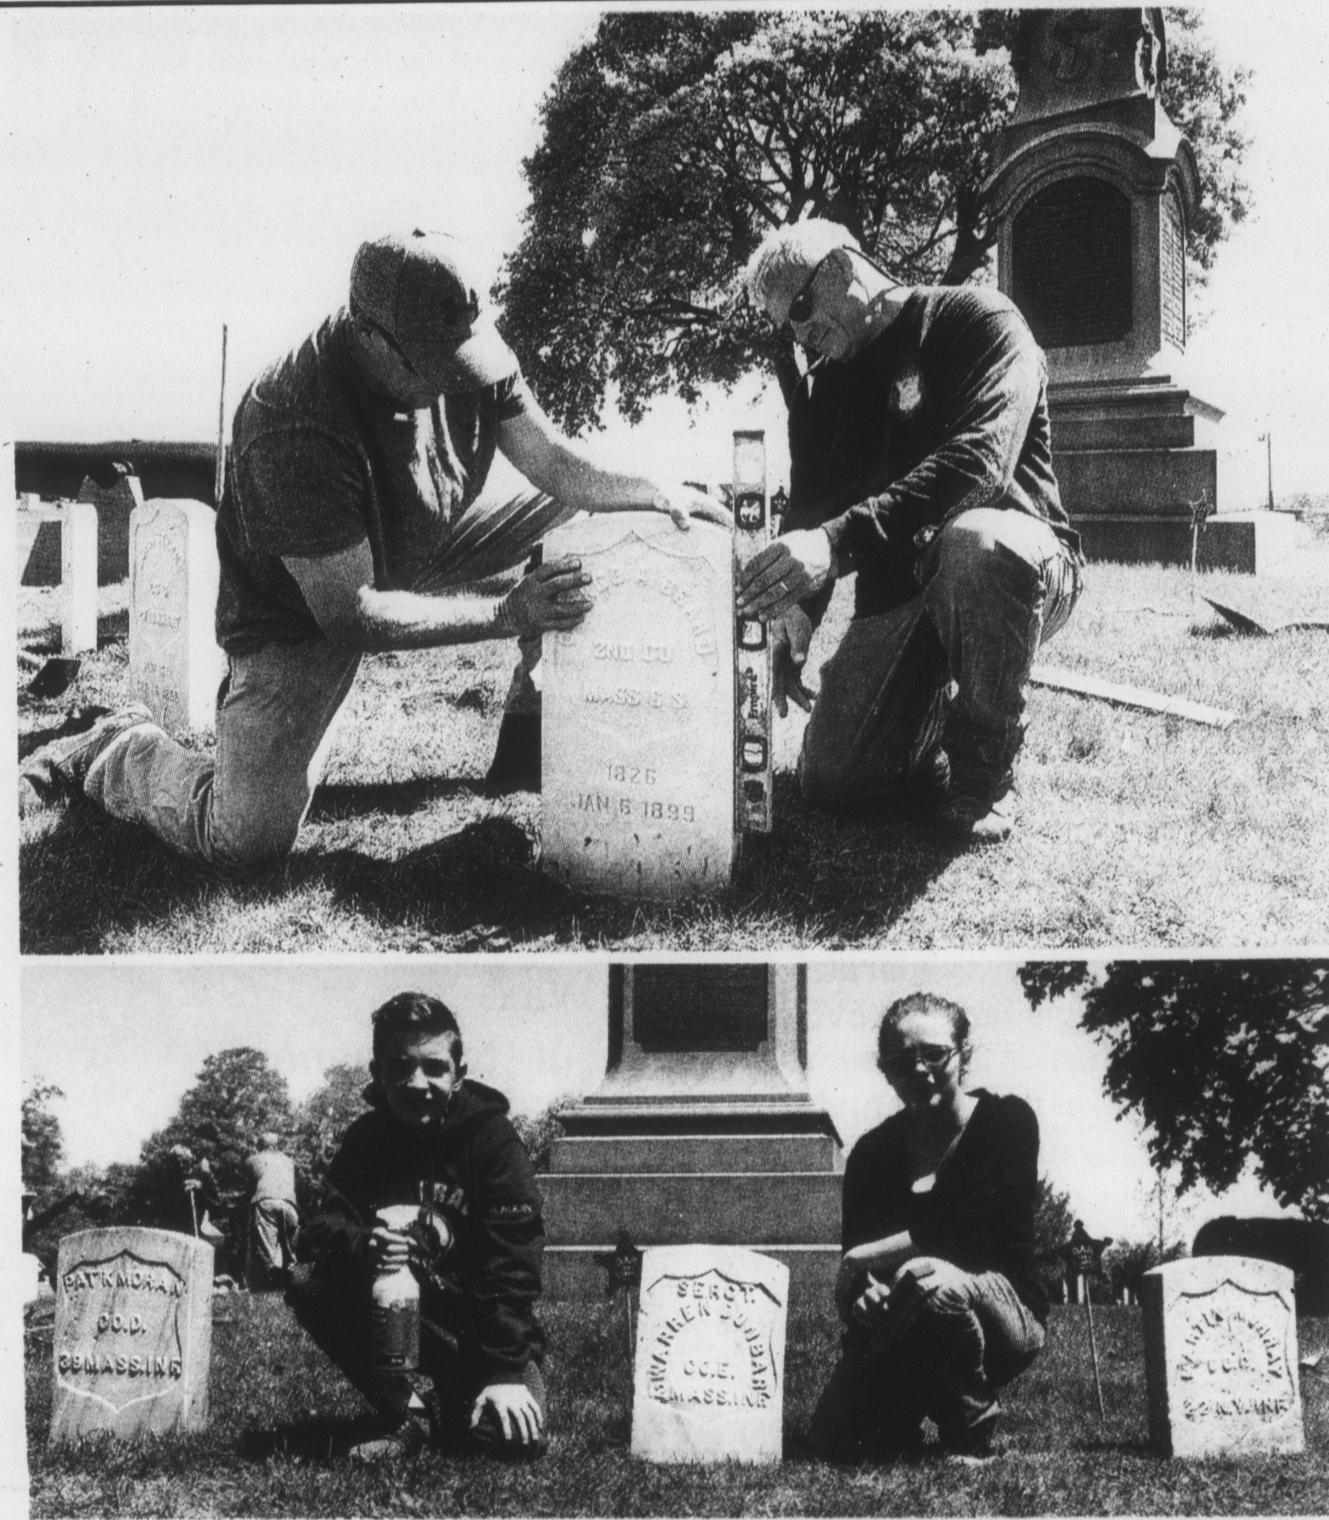

"It's a huge change up there for sure," he said.

New Headstones For Civil War Soldiers, Cannons Repainted

Matthew Maderos, a 13-year-old Quincy resident, volunteered to clean the four headstones that were not replaced because they were still readable, Bouchard said.

Workers with the cemetery department are also in the process of stripping down and repainting the four Civil War-era cannons located that sit at Mount Wollaston Cemetery. That work will likewise be done in time for Memorial Day, Bouchard said, using supplies the city already had on hand.

The cannons, which weigh 3.5 tons each, were formerly housed aboard the USS Constitution. The 32-pounders – the weight of a single shot that could be fired from each – were made by the Cyrus Alger Co. of Boston. The firm, originally known as the South Boston Iron Company, provided heavy artillery to the U.S. government during the War of 1812 and the Civil War.

The cannons at Mount Wollaston Cemetery were tested at Nut Island in 1848 by naval ordinance inspectors Thomas Durnin and Andrew Harwood.

The cannons were donated to the city by the Paul J. Revere Post #88 of the Grand Army of the Republic in 1897. Congressman A. H. Atwood helped procure the cannons from the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Founding Martyr: The Life And Death Of Dr. Joseph Warren At Adams Historical Park June 12

While at Columbia University, Christian Di Spigna started his research on Dr. Joseph Warren. A friend of John and Abigail Adams, Dr. Warren was killed in the Battle of Bunker Hill on June 17, 1775. Dying so early in the Revolutionary War, Dr. Warren has been overshadowed. and open to the public 7 to 8:30 p.m. It is located at the Carriage House, 135 Adams St., Boston. Limited street parking is available. Adams National Historical Park includes the birthplaces of the fifth and sixth presidents of the United States: John

On Wednesday, June 12, Di Spigna will come to Adams National Historical Park and discuss new discoveries he's made about Dr. Warren - including material culture pieces, artifacts, and primary sources. He will deconstruct the Warren legends and explore his resistance activities between 1765 and 1775 as he rose to the heights of power. This talk is based on his new book, Founding Martyr: The Life and Death of Dr. Joseph Warren, The American Revolution's Lost Hero. A book signing to follow.

MAJOR JOHN DAVENPORT, Sr., U.S.M.C. Retired, was the keynote speaker at the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette Legion Post Memorial Day observance at Flags for Veterans Island. "Memorial Day is about those who gave their lives so that we may continue to benefit from the privilege of living in this great country," Davenport said during his remarks.

ROBERT LAFLEUR, past commander, Morrisette American Legion Post and dual member, Squadron 294, SAL, sounds taps at Sons of the American Legion Memorial Day observance at Flags for Veterans Island Sunday.

Veterans' Sacrifices Honored At Memorial Day Ceremony

Sons Of American Legion Host Annual Observance At Flags For Veterans Island

By TOM GORMAN

The sacrifices of veterans were honored during the ninth annual pre-Memorial Day ceremony at the Flags for Veterans Island at Fort Square on Sunday.

Residents, veterans, and local officials gathered before the grass-covered traffic island featuring 400 fluttering flags that serves as a veterans' memorial. Flanked by color guards from the Quincy police and fire departments, North Quincy High School ROTC, Houghs Neck Boy Scout Troop 6, and Morrisette Post Ladies Auxiliary, Commander of the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294 Paul Moody, welcomed the gathering.

"Always remember, if there were no veterans, there would be no America," he said. "Freedom is not free."

In addition to the 400 flags, each of which represents a veteran - except one that honors prisoners of war and those missing in action - there are 500 inscribed bricks that form a walkway, a flagpole, and benches that grace the island.

"The flags and bricks on this island represent those who served, those who are still serving, and those who paid the ultimate sacrifice to keep America free," said Moody.

Keynote speaker, retired Marine Major John Davenport, a Quincy native, served for 23 years in the Marines and retired as deputy adjutant of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at Parris Island, South Carolina in 1987. He reflected on five young men he knew growing up in Quincy who died while serving their country.

DON KNIGHT, Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, gives the benediction at Sunday's Memorial Day observance.

OTHER SPEAKERS (from left) Jimmy McTiernan, Paul Daley, Bob Petrelli and Jeff Starr, remembered the sacrifice of good friends and fallen comrades — Jim Cavigchi, Paul Grasso, Al Schofield and Dave Pugliesi — respectively. Also remembered was Ed Gargano who was killed by a sniper while serving in Beirut on Jan. 8, 1984.

School, Daley said he and Grasso would meet up with friends each weekend, hop in a car, and visit the various eateries on Southern Artery — Howard Johnson's, Leaning Tower of Pizza, and Howdy's Burgers.

"It was a wonderful and free American life," said Daley. "We had a lot of fun."

He said President John F. Kennedy's inaugural speech to "pay any price ... oppose any foe" in order to protect liberty "cemented my service to my country."

With the Vietnam War looming and not wanting to wait to be drafted, Daley said he, his brother Phil, and Grasso, joined the Marines. After training and serving in a platoon, Daley related how Grasso was the only member promoted from private to Private First Class.

"He was so proud of that," said Daley.

The trio decided to serve in the infantry and after jungle training, it was off to Vietnam. Daley went to Khe Sanh and Grasso to the third battalion in "Indian Country."

"We were separated from left to right and west to east," said Daley. "It was the last time I ever saw him."

Added Daley, "I miss my high school buddy, my friend and Marine."

Davenport's Quincy High School Class of '64 classmate Bob Petrelli remembered their classmate, Army Lt. Al Schofield who was killed in action in Vietnam on Sept. 16, 1968.

Schofield posthumously received the Silver Star for his actions in saving wounded and trapped comrades while under heavy enemy fire. Petrelli read the account of Schofield's heroic action from his Silver Star award.

"Lt. Schofield, a platoon leader, was escorting a convoy when it came under attack and his vehicle was trapped in the killing zone," Petrelli read. "The initial burst of enemy fire killed or wounded several members of his platoon. Hearing a plea from one of his wounded men, Lt. Schofield, with complete disregard for his personal safety, braved the devastating enemy fire as he retrieved the wounded men."

Petrelli continued, "While carrying his comrades to the rear, Lt. Schofield was fatally wounded by an enemy rocket. His valorous actions were responsible for saving several lives and the successful completion of the mission."

Schofield left behind his wife and infant child.

"As a member of the Class of '64, those played soccer with him, always remember Al as a leader," said Petrelli. "He was a leader from the time he was young until his final seconds."

Jeff Starr spoke about another Quincy Point friend and Vietnam veteran, Dave Pugliesi, who was severely wounded on March 9, 1969.

Pugliesi attended Daniel Webster Elementary School, Pont Junior High, and graduated from Quincy High in 1967. Starr said that Pugliesi attended Boston University for a year before joining the Army and serving in the infantry in Vietnam.

"Dave was intelligent, adventurous, and courageous," said Starr.

Pugliesi was awarded the Bronze Medal for his heroic actions on Jan. 27, 1969. He was also awarded two Purple Hearts, the Combat Infantry Badge, and other medals, according to Starr.

Less than two months later, Starr said that Pugliesi was severely wounded "that changed his and his family's lives forever." He died nearly 20 years later, on Aug. 17, 1987 from complications as a result of the wounds he sustained.

Davenport paid tribute to another friend and Marine, Ed Gargano, who grew up in Quincy Point and Germantown. Gargano served with his battalion during the 1983 invasion of Grenada and was killed by a sniper while serving in Beirut on Jan. 8, 1984.

No Council Vote Yet On FoxRock Deal

The pending land disposition agreement between the developer and city allows FoxRock to proceed with projects on both sites. The company would pay the city $4.25 million and in return would receive about two acres of land on the Ross Lot. The city would terminate the reverter clause it now holds on the Quincy Medical Center site as well. The reverter clause enables the city to take back the land if medical uses on site cease.

Monday's meeting was the third time the council's finance committee met to review the LDA between the city and FoxRock. The committee spent more than two hours reviewing the deal Monday and did not take a vote; the committee will take up the matter again on June 12.

"Clearly, we still have a lot to discuss to understand more about this," said Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain, the committee's chairman, at the conclusion of the meeting. "We're not going to take a vote tonight."

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, whose district includes the Quincy Medical Center property, had proposed an amendment to the LDA that would uncouple FoxRock's plans for the Whitwell Street site and the Ross Lot during the committee's April 29 meeting. The amendment had been presented to the City Council during a public hearing earlier that evening by members of the Hospital Hill Neighborhoods Association, who said the proposals should be considered separately.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins on Monday said linking the two projects together in the LDA was critical to both.

"We're seeking the release of the reverter because it's appropriate, it's going to dovetail with the reality of the situation about health care moving to the downtown and an obsolete site that has failed continuously, still resulting in a payment of $4.25 million," Timmins said. "Had we not tied these things together, we could not have done both."

The reverter clause, he explained, was first included in the 1999 deed that saw the then Quincy Hospital sold by the city to a non-profit entity. The reverter clause was attached to the deed when Steward Health Care acquired the hospital in 2011 and when Steward sold it to FoxRock in 2016 for $12 million. FoxRock was designated the developer for the Ross Lot the same day it acquired the hospital site. FoxRock's 2016 agreement with the city required the company to lease out 150,000 square feet of space for medical uses at either the Quincy Medical Center or Ross Lot site, or both, for at least seven years, or pay $4.25 million to the city to terminate the reverter clause.

Timmins said FoxRock could challenge the validity of the reverter clause in Land Court if the company were allowed to build the medical office building on the Ross Lot. Steward, he said, had threatened to challenge the validity of the reverter prior to selling to FoxRock; Steward contended the Whitwell Street facility was obsolete because the company, the city and the non-profit entity were all unsuccessful there.

Even if the reverter clause were not challenged in court, Timmins said it would expire in 2029 under state law that limits the life of such clauses to 30 years.

"Hypothetically, we may not have a medical use there and we may not have one in the downtown," he said, if the reverter expired.

Jim Shea, the attorney who represents the City Council on all downtown matters, was asked by Councillor Noel DiBona if the council should approve the amendment Hughes introduced. Shea said the council should not, because the mayor is tasked with negotiating such agreements.

"The council has a role and the LDA has to be approved by the council in order to be valid or enforceable," Shea said. "The executive office negotiates the deal."

The council, Shea added later, can ask the administration to make changes to the LDA as it sees fit.

Councillor Nina Liang asked Timmins how FoxRock and the city came to the agreement that the right of reverter clause for the Hospital Hill site was worth $4.25 million. She also wanted to know what the fair market value is for the land FoxRock would receive on the Ross Lot.

"This is a very big piece of property in the downtown. We don't have much public land left," Liang said. "There is a lot of things to consider with this vote for this one particular LDA. I'm not looking for this information to make my job easier — I'm looking for it so I can make the best decision and most educated decision possible."

Timmins said several appraisers had looked at the Quincy Medical Center site to determine its value but were unable to put a dollar figure on the reverter clause itself. The mayor, Timmins said, set the initial value for the reverter clause at $10 million during negotiations with FoxRock. Timmins said the $10 million number was based on the difference between $28 million, the high end for the fair market value for the site as determined by a consultant to the Attorney General's Office, and $18 million, the highest offer Steward said it received for the property.

William Geary, Koch's special counsel for Quincy Center, said an appraiser had valued the Ross Lot land at $140 per square foot based on comparable sales, including the city's eminent domain taking of the nearby Messina Lot. The council in February approved taking the 1.1-acre Messina Lot, at the corner of Hancock Street and Hannon Parkway, by eminent domain and awarded the lot's former owner $6.8 million for the land.

Geary noted, however, that the city is requiring FoxRock to construct a medical office building on site, which diminishes the value of the Ross Lot land.

"The intrinsic value of land is diminished and can be diminished considerably if you put a limitation on it, if you put a restriction on it, and that's what the city is doing," Geary said. "The city is restricting FoxRock as to what they can do with that land."

Geary added he would provide the report on the fair market value for the land to the council ahead of its next meeting.

Councillor Anne Mahoney said it was too soon to vote on the land disposition agreement, in part because the deal does not directly address the hotel and residential buildings FoxRock has included in its plans for Quincy Center.

"It is loosey-goosey. We are talking about medical use, we are talking about a hotel and we are talking about workforce housing. However, medical use is the only thing that's in the LDA," Mahoney said. "I would say we're in kind of tricky territory if we say yes to that LDA."

Shea, the council's attorney, said the LDA is not yet ready.

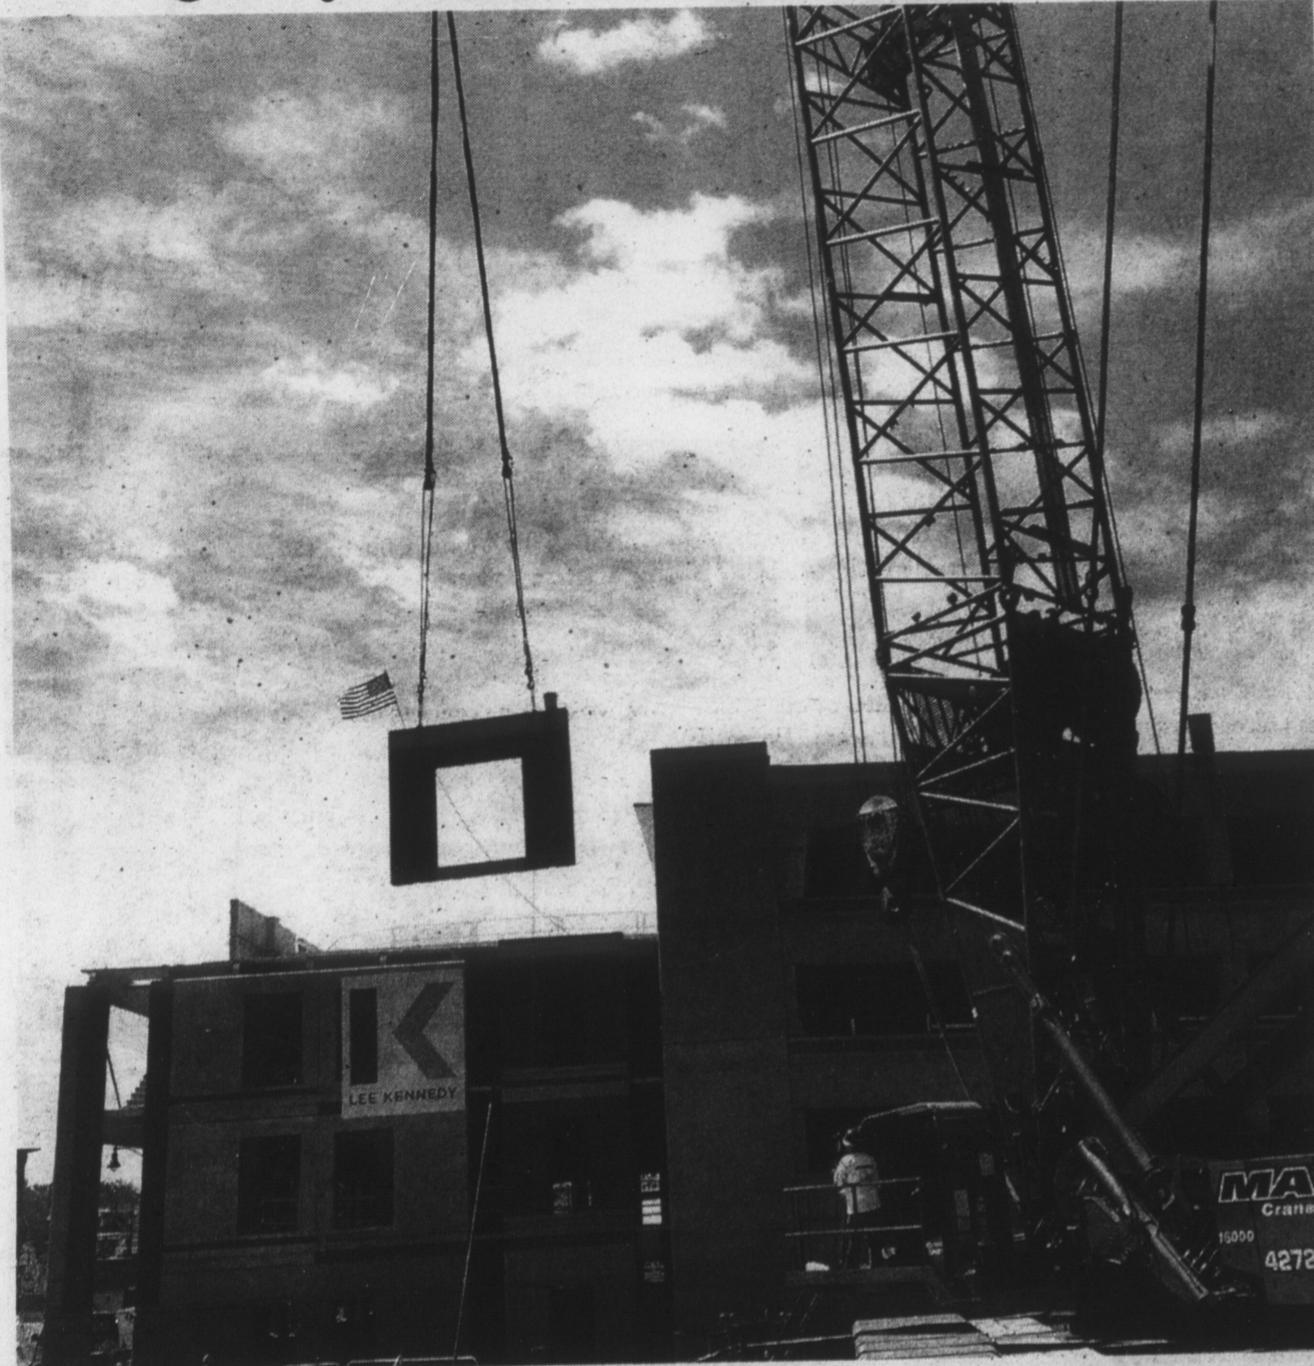

"No one is asking you to say yes to the LDA," he said. "It's not even close to being ready."

Brahimi Outduels Lynch In NQ's 4-2 Win Over Quincy

By BRUCE MARQUIS

The "visiting" North Quincy Red Raiders hung on for a 4-2 victory over the Quincy Presidents May 16 at Adams Field. Baseball's major leagues could learn a lesson from baseball in Quincy as this classic hardball game was played in under two hours, albeit a 7-inning affair.

Featuring an old-fashioned pitching duel between the Raiders' sophomore Joe Brahim and the Presidents' senior Griffin Lynch, the contest provided about 300 spectators with fast-paced action on the diamond.

Both pitchers lasted all seven innings with senior Lynch throwing only 88 pitches. He walked only one and hit one batter and struck out 5, all swinging. Winning hurler Brahim, dominated with a sharp-breaking curveball, striking out nine, eight swinging. He threw 110 times with only one base on balls.

The line score of the game was 4 runs, 9 hits, and 9 men left on base for the visitors, and 2 runs, 5 hits, and 6 men on base for the home team. Each team committed one error.

After North Quincy took the lead in the top of the first frame on a single by Brahim which brought in senior designated hitter Noah Wines who had been hit by a pitch, there were four successive half-innings of 1-2-3 baseball as both pitchers demonstrated excellent control with their fast balls and off-speed pitches.

The winning run was scored in the top of the sixth inning by senior left fielder Brady McGuiness when he was chased home on an RBI single by freshman catcher Johnny Lynch III. McGuiness had reached first base on a fielder's choice when he grounded to freshman shortstop Jack Nelson who threw to junior second baseman junior second baseman Drew Polsgrove for the force out.

The hitting star for the Raiders was sophomore shortstop Liam Hines, who reached base on all his plate appearance with 3 singles and a free pass. He scored his squad's second run in the sixth, putting his team up 2-1 at the time.

In addition to outstanding pitching the game featured impressive defensive efforts by both squads despite the two errors, both involving run downs with diving tags that resulted in the ball coming loose. The first resulted in Quincy's initial run in the fourth stanza. President Lynch had tripled to deep left field, making an acrobatic slide into third base. A grounder to third baseman senior Brian Pham resulted in a run down as the base runner started for home and then stopped. Pham played it brilliantly, properly running right at his adversary and forcing him to dash one way or the other. Lynch chose to go home and Pham dove to tag him, but as he rolled over twice on the ground the ball escaped his glove, the umpire ruling the runner safe.

Other than that inning, Brahim had four 1-2-3 innings, striking out the side in the third. But in the final inning Quincy rallied. Senior left fielder A.J. Nelson led off the stanza with an infield single to short but was erased on a fielder's choice by junior first baseman Erik Mayo. Bobby Dunn ran for Mayo, took second a wild pitch and scored on a single to center by junior second baseman Drew Polsgrove. Dillon Green ran for him, stole second base, but was stranded to end the game as sophomore center fielder Devin Desmond grounded out second to first with junior first baseman Mike Levine making the final putout.

Players not already mentioned include Quincy's junior right fielder Mike Scibilio, senior catcher Nolan Walker, senior third baseman Andrew Rooney, and pinch runners Bobby Dunn and Dylan Green; and for North Quincy senior right fielder Danny Ferrara, freshman second baseman Scotty Gutro, pinch runner Robert Broderick and pinch hitter Quincy's record for the season fell to 2-9, while the North Side Raiders improved to 5-8.

Presidents' coach Rick Beach was pleased with the hustle and strong defense demonstrated by his senior-dominated team. He made special mention of the effort of his pitcher, Lynch, who had the game's only extra base hit and blasted a ball deep to center field that was hauled in by North Quincy's senior Andrew Airosus in the sixth inning. Lynch showed exceptional power with his powerful snap of the wrists as he contacts the ball.

Red Raiders' coach Matt

Edgerly cited the pitching of Brahim as the key factor in his team's win. He enthusiastically lauded his younger players who made several important plays during the pressure-packed inter-city match. Although his squad also started five seniors, the Raiders had two freshmen in the starting lineup - Gutro and catcher Lynch.

Red Raiders Top Presidents In Softball, 9-3

By TOM JOYCE

In a rivalry contest between two in-city rivals, it was the North Quincy High girls softball team which came out on top May 16.

The Red Raiders faced off against the Quincy Presidents at Mitchell McCoy Field, and they batted their way to a 9-3 victory. With the win, the Red Raiders improved to 9-5 on the season while the Presidents fell to 4-10 with their loss.

"The girls stayed in it for the entire game," Red Raiders' head coach Liz Kelly said. "I think we've had a hard time staying in games for seven innings. This game, they played strong and tough from start to finish."

"It's tough to lose in a rivalry game, especially for the seniors since it's their last time playing North Quincy," Presidents' head coach Greg Sommers added. "I thought we hit the ball well throughout the game, we just couldn't get anything going until the last inning. It was tough."

Sydney Taylor gave the Red Raiders a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the second inning, knocking in an RBI single with one out. An inning later the team pulled away.

Ciara O'Connor led off the bottom of the third with a single. A flyout and sacrifice bunt advanced her to third base with two outs in the inning. Samantha Smith then drew a walk, putting two runners on for Ashley Caldwell — and she capitalized on the opportunity. She smashed a three-run home run over the left field fence, giving the Red Raiders a 4-0 advantage.

It was not the only home run of the game either. Smith blasted a two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth inning, extending the team's lead to 9-0. Smith's home run knocked in Orla O'Driscoll, who led off the inning by legging out an infield single.

"Energy is kind of our downfall, so that really pumped them up," Kelly said of her team's two home runs. "It was nice for Shannon O'Brien to have a few runs under her belt while pitching. I think in a high pressure game like North vs. Quincy having a little cushion under your belt helps you relax a little bit. We said it was a 0-0 game throughout it and tried to keep our focus that way."

Despite trailing heading into the final inning of the game, the Presidents did not give up. Gianna Franceschini led off the seventh by drawing a walk and with one out in the inning, Ashley Grehan singled up the middle, putting a runner in scoring position. A passed ball during Emma Glavin's at-bat put a runner on second and third and she capitalized, smacking an RBI single to shallow left field to make it 9-1.

With two outs in the inning, Meghan Davis knocked in a pair of baserunners as well with her single to right field.

"It's always good to never give up and keep playing," Sommers said. "The game is not over until the final out, so it is what it is. The bottom of the order is starting to hit a little bit, so we're hoping we can keep that going."

On the mound, Shannon O'Brien pitched a complete game for the Red Raiders and picked up a win. She showed poise on the mound at times, like when she forced a flyout with runners on second and third for Quincy with two outs in the top of the fourth inning.

For Quincy, Sommers said Juliana Tracey, who pitched a complete game, threw well for the Presidents. He also noted defensively, Emma Glavin was sharp behind the plate, as was Ashley Grehan at shortstop. Offensively, Priscilla Bonica had a pair of hits, and Sommers said both Meghan Davis and Megan Beck also drove the ball well.

In addition to O'Brien, Caldwell and Smith, Kelly said Cam Burgio played well defensively at shortstop for the Red Raiders.

Following the win over the Presidents, the Red Raiders were just one game away from clinching a spot in the MIAA playoff bracket. However, the playoffs have not been a big focus for them lately.

"It's the goal in the back of our heads, but it's not what we're focused on day in and day out," Kelly said. "Right now, we're just trying to win games."

NQ Boys Volleyball Defeats Quincy

By TOM JOYCE

Both sides played competitive volleyball, but it was the North Quincy High boys' volleyball team which came out with the victory May 15.

The Red Raiders hosted their in-city rival, the Quincy Presidents, in a contest where both teams battled through every point. The Red Raiders won the match 3-0 and improved to 15-2 on the season; with the loss, the Presidents fell to 6-12.

"It was a good game," Red Raiders' head coach Jason Cai said. "Both sides played well. They're very scrappy. They pick everything up and were able to put it back over. I think that frustrated us a bit and put the score back at even at some points, but we were able to adjust and pull through."

"We made a couple of errors in the beginning," he added, "but we got a service run and I was able to put in some of my JV guys from the bench to get them some work late to see what they can do. It's a fun match. It's a tough opponent. I want to see what they can produce at a high level."

The Red Raiders took the first set 25-15 and the second set 25-14, but the third and final set of the contest was the closest of all: they edged out a 25-23 victory in it.

Ilan Valencius led the way for the Red Raiders on the attack with a team-high 13 kills while Tyler Li finished second with 10 of them. Jeffrey Huang (27 digs) shined defensively and passed well; Tony Nguyen added 12 digs as well. Setter Gary Liang (33 assists) did his job and serving, Tommy Nguyen (7 aces) and Valencius (6 aces) helped make the difference in the victory.

"A lot of guys surprised me," Cai said. "They went down low and sacrificed the body to pick things up."

On the Quincy side, coach Jacqui Niosi said she was impressed by the play the team received from Huy Nguyen, who had five kills and two blocks. He tied Jacob Zarges and Tommy MacPherson for the team-high in kills in the game.

Defensively, Tedi Qafko led the team with 11 digs.

"I think we got better as we went along, adjusted our block and played decent defense," Niosi said. "North has a lot of offensive power, so it's hard to shut them all down. You know they're gonna get some impressive kills, so we had to maintain the best we can."

The Presidents also received strong performances from their bench in the bout.

Senior Jacob Ball, a first-year player, came into the game during the second set, hit well and provided the team with a spark. On defense, Joe Ban (2 digs) came in as a substitute; Niosi said he has worked hard at practice and played well in the opportunity.

As the season has progressed and players gain experience, the Presidents have been able to turn to their bench more as of late—which has proven itself useful.

"It's awesome," Niosi said. "You have to be ready to play all of the time. We had a conversation with the players about how what we do in practice impacts what happens in games, however much time you're getting. When you're working hard in practice, you never know when your chance will be to see game time, so you have to be ready."

At practice, the Presidents have been working on improving their communication, intensity and mental toughness.

"It's really hard to replicate the mental toughness you need in games," Niosi said, "so we've been doing competitive drills."

Meanwhile, the Red Raiders have focused in on their covering, blocking and serving. They have already clinched a postseason spot, but Cai said his team wants home games in the playoffs, which has helped keep them focused.

"How far will we go?" Cai said. "That's another question. But I really hope we do go far. We want to give the fans something to cheer about at North Quincy."

Red Raider

Boys Tennis

Bows To Hanover

By TOM JOYCE

It was a battle between two of the top teams on the South Shore highlighted by a match between two of the area's top individuals. This time, however, it was not the North Quincy High boys' tennis team's day.

The Red Raiders competed hard against the Hanover Indians on May 15 at the Bishop Courts in Quincy. Ultimately, this time the match went to Hanover and the Red Raiders fell 5-0 and dropped to 7-4 on the season.

The top singles match featured North Quincy's Shane Lerkvikarn, a junior who was named Patriot League Fisher Division MVP last season, and Hanover's Nik Ginter, the top seed in the MIAA South Sectional individual boys' tennis singles bracket. The first time they competed against one another this season, Lerkvikarn took the match. This time, it went to Ginter (6-1, 2-6, 6-2). It marked Lerkvikarn's first loss of the season and with it, he fell to 10-1 on the year; it put him at 48-4 in team singles matches over the course of his high school career so far.

"Today was a great battle," Lerkvikarn said. "My opponent played really well. I had my chances. When I was up 2-0 in the third set, I felt pretty good, but it turned pretty fast. I'm really proud of this season so far and hope it's the best of my high school career."

Red Raiders head coach Matt Ramponi added, "Hats off to Nik Ginter. He's a phenomenal tennis player. Shane beat him earlier this season. They came after it today and played a little better today. Shane is one of the most mentally tough kids I've been around, basketball-wise, tennis-wise. He might play a kid that's a little more powerful, but he can use his brain, and he gets after it."

Up and down his lineup, Ramponi said he thought his team played well despite the loss. He noted in particular, Alex Antanassov played a highly competitive match in singles, falling in two sets (6-4, 7-5).

This season, the team is laden with strong leadership. In addition to Lerkvikarn and Antanassov, senior Adam Tiacoxolal serves as a captain – and Red Raiders have five seniors overall. Josh Dangora, Jason Chen, James Zheng, Antanassov and Tiacoxolal round out the team's senior class.

"A lot of these kids have played for four years, three years – and they've been great," Ramponi said of his upperclassmen. "They pick each other up. They hold each other accountable. Coaching this team has been an absolute pleasure because of the attitude of the kids. Even after this loss, you see some kids staying late and practicing with each other. They put in the time. They earn it."

Helping the younger players not only learn the game but also thrive is something Lerkvikarn said he appreciates about being a part of the team.

"One of the special aspects of high school is that it's a team sport," he said. "Usually, it's an individual sport, but I'm able to set an example for the team and am happy it's going well this season."

Ramponi said the upperclassmen lead by example and are the reason why the program is as successful as it is today. Before they came in, he noted the team struggled mightily in the two seasons prior to their arrival.

He also noted the team's assistant coach Dan Wong, a 2016 North Quincy High grad who is a member of the UMass Boston men's tennis team, has been crucial to the program as well.

"He's been a phenomenal asset to the kids," Ramponi said. "He helps me every step of the way. He makes sacrifices to be here for me. As a group, as a program, and he deserves a lot of praise for what he's done for us."

OBITUARIES

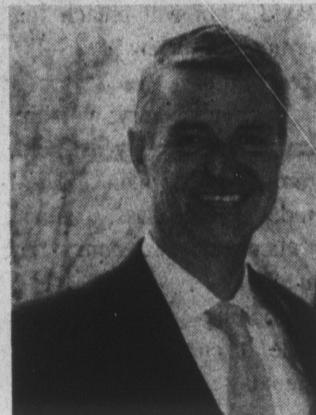

Thomas W. Nadeau, 58

A celebration of life for Thomas W. Nadeau, age 58, of Quincy and Wells, ME, was held Tuesday at Granite Links Golf Club, Quincy.

Mr. Nadeau died peacefully May 16.

Born in Brockton, he was the son of the late Joseph F. Nadeau and Marilyn T. (Murphy) Nadeau. Mr. Nadeau was the beloved husband of Elizabeth Donovan-Nadeau, devoted father to Jenelle, Liane, Michael, Elizabeth, and Hannah, all of Boston, and loving brother of Gerard Nadeau and his wife Diane of North Easton.

Mr. Nadeau was a 1979 graduate of Brockton High School, and later earned his Bachelor's degree from Stonehill College and Masters of Business Administration from Babson College. Mr. Nadeau was a senior executive at Metro Credit Union and had a long-time career in banking. He enjoyed spending time with family and friends, and was a member of Thorny Lea Golf Club in Brockton.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, 10 Brookline Place West, 6th Floor, Brookline, MA 02445.

Robert L. Grenham, 63

Visiting hours for Robert L. Grenham, 63, of Weymouth, were held Monday in Hamel-Lydon Chapel, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. Grenham died May 12.

Beloved companion of 18 years to Carolann (Kenny) Cooper of Weymouth. Loving stepfather of Charles Cooper and Angel Cooper both of Quincy. Son of the late Thomas and Elizabeth Grenham. Mr. Grenham was the youngest of five boys and is preceded in death by his four brothers. Also survived by his sister in law Sue Grenham, his niece Chelsea Grenham, his nephew Tommy Grenham and many other cousins, extended family and good friends.

Mr. Grenham was a Quincy High School graduate of the class of 1974. He grew up on Houghs Neck and enjoyed his times spent boating and fishing off the coast. Had been a union carpenter before operating his own construction business, Grenham Construction, then retired due to illness in 2017.

Marie A. McCarthy

A funeral Mass for Marie A. (Langdon) McCarthy of Plymouth, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated May 17 in St. Kateri Tekakwitha Church, Plymouth.

Mrs. McCarthy died peacefully in her home with her family on May 12.

Beloved wife of the late Gerald E. McCarthy. Born in Cambridge on Aug. 12, 1941, daughter of the late Harry and Matilda (Simeone) Langdon. She was the loving mother of Lynne McCarthy Bergeron of Plymouth, Laurie Borofski of Plymouth, Steven McCarthy and his wife Christine of Boylston and Lisa McCarthy and her partner Edward Corridan of Bourne. Cherished grandmother of Jason Bergeron, Carly Bergeron, Dylan Borofski and his fiance Megan Brown, Katrina Borofski, Nicole Borofski, Jennifer Lamby, Kaitlin McCarthy and Thomas McCarthy, and great grandmother of Harper Borofski. Sister of Joanne Shores and her husband John of Plymouth, Carolyn Place and her husband George of Wayland and Beverly Currie of Carver. Also survived by many nieces, nephews, cousins, friends, and let's not forget she was a loving human to Oliver, Toby Keith, Rodney Harrison and Tigger.

MARIE A. McCARTHY

Mrs. McCarthy was employed by Blue Cross Blue Shield of MA; she was an avid sports fan, especially the Red Sox and the Patriots. 22 Residents Pull Nomination Papers

By SCOTT JACKSON

Twenty-two residents have taken out papers to run in this year's municipal election, setting up potential races for mayor, five seats on the City Council and the three slots available on the School Committee.

The most recent residents to pull papers as noon Tuesday were Brenda Ryan, 14 Cranch St., who is running for mayor; Frank Santoro, 14 Lois Ter., who is seeking a School Committee seat; Joseph Murphy of 18 Macy St., who is running for the Ward 1 seat on the council; and William Burke of 28 Rice Rd., who is seeking one of the three at-large seats on the council.

The deadline to submit completed nomination papers to the Board of Registrars of Voters is July 19 at 5 p.m. Certified nomination papers, including a statement of candidacy, would then need to be filed with the City Clerk's Office by 5 p.m. on Aug. 6.

The signatures of 50 registered voters are required for each office in a municipal election. Residents running for one of the six ward councillor seats must obtain the signatures from within their ward.

Ryan would be running against incumbent Thomas Koch, a resident of 249 Newbury Ave., in the race for mayor.

Santoro, a former School Committee member, is the fourth resident to pull papers in the race for a seat on the committee. Two incumbent members, Paul Bregoli of 80 Willow Ave. and Kathryn Hubley of 44 Marion St., have pulled papers for re-election. A third candidate, Courtney Perdios of 86 Ruggles St., has done so as well. Perdios has already submitted the requisite 50 signatures to the clerk's office.

Burke would be running against the three incumbent at-large councillors, who have all taken out nomination papers. They are: Noel DiBona, 70 Chickabot Rd.; Nina Liang, 2 Williams St.; and Anne Mahoney, 12 Ferrier St.

Murphy joins two others seeking the Ward 1 seat. They are incumbent David McCarthy of 48 Whitney Rd. and Danielle Kempe of 1 Adams St.

In Ward 3, the incumbent, Ian Cain of 8 Highpoint Cir., has taken out papers to seek re-election. Eriberto Soto Jr. of 627 Adams St. has likewise taken out papers to run for the seat.

Three residents have pulled papers to run for the Ward 5 seat on the City Council; incumbent Kirsten Hughes announced earlier this spring she would not seek re-election in the fall. The three residents to pull papers for that seat are: Christopher DeCambre of 25 Langley Cir.; Mary Lally of 10 Weston Ave.; and Charles Phelan, a former councillor, of 298 Fenno St.

In Ward 6, incumbent William Harris of 74 Ashworth

Rd. has taken out papers to seek re-election. William Isenberg of 36 Carle Rd. has also pulled papers for that race.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, 92 Viden Rd., and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, 16 Cross St. have also pulled papers to seek re-election. Neither had a challenger of Tuesday morning.

A preliminary election would be required if more than two candidates run for mayor or any one ward council seat, or if more than six ran for either councillor at-large or the school board.

The preliminary election would be held Sept. 10. The final election is scheduled for Nov. 5.

The deadline for residents to register to vote in the preliminary election would be 8 p.m. on Aug. 21, and absentee balloting would end at noon the day before the preliminary.

The deadline to register to vote in the Nov. 5 general election is Oct. 16 at 8 p.m. Absentee balloting ends at noon on Nov. 4.

The four men charged with a vicious late-night attack on two victims at the North Quincy MBTA station following a Bruins playoff game are due back in court on June 3.

Stiles Bezema, 21, of Wrentham; Antonio Green, 31, of Agawam; and John Pritoni, 29, and Thomas Pritoni, 23, both of Norfolk, were arraigned on charges of assault and battery causing serious bodily injury and assault and battery in Quincy District Court on May 15. Not guilty pleas were entered on their behalf.

Bezema was held on $2,500 cash bail and the three other men were held on $5,000 cash bail.

Transit Police said the men attacked two people at the train station around midnight on May 10 following the first game of the Eastern Conference Finals at TD Garden. Police believe the men were in attendance at the game.

One victim received 10 stitches near his left eye and his orbital bone was broken, according to police. The other victim sustained a concussion.

Transit Police on May 13 released surveillance images of five men wanted for questioning in connection with the attack, describing it as a vicious beating. One of the men went to police to identify the four others, saying he wasn't involved in the incident.

The four defendants later turned themselves in to police.

Quincy Police ID Armed Robbery Suspect

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy police on Monday said the suspect who robbed a liquor store at knifepoint in April has fled the country.

Sgt. Karyn Barkas on Monday said the suspect has been identified as Elhalaby Souhail, age 23. Souhail's last known residence was in Lynn, but Barkas said he had been staying with friends in Quincy. The suspect has since fled the country, she said.

"We believe he fled to Morocco," Barkas said Monday.

Discount Liquors, located at 380 Granite St., was robbed shortly after 9:40 p.m. on April 30, police said. The suspect was wearing a black ski mask with gray stripes, according to police; he was holding a large knife and demanded an employee to "give me all the money."

The suspect then exited the store, turned left and ran up Granite Street towards Centre Street, possibly onto Town Hill Street. The suspect made off with an undisclosed amount of cash. No injuries were reported.

Police on May 16 said they had identified the sus-

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) There's nothing an Aries Lamb likes less than having to tackle a humdrum task. But finding a creative way to do it can make all the difference. A more exciting time awaits you this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Finishing up a job on time leaves you free to enjoy your weekend without any Taurean guilt pangs.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Moving in a new career direction might be seen by some as risky. But if you have both the confidence to see it through and the facts to back you up, it could prove rewarding.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Holding back on a decision might be difficult, considering how long you've waited for this opportunity.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You still need to move carefully where financial matters are concerned. Better for the Lion to move slowly than pounce on a "promising" prospect that doesn't keep its promises.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A rejection of an idea you believe in can be upsetting. But don't let it discourage you. Get yourself back on track and use what you've learned from the experience to try again.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The early part of the week could find you looking to balance your priorities between your family and your career responsibilities. Pressures begin to ease by week's end.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An associate's problem could cause unavoidable delays in moving ahead with your joint venture. If so, use the time to look into another project you had previously set aside.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although a financial problem could be very close to being resolved in your favor, it's still a good idea to avoid unnecessary spending for at least a little while longer.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Support for some unwelcome workplace decisions begins to show up, and continues to build, so that by week's end, the gregarious Goat is as popular as ever.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Congratulations. Deciding to attend a social function you might have earlier tried to avoid could turn out to be one of the best decisions you've made in a long time.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Getting into a new situation could prove to be a more difficult experience than you expected. Don't hesitate to ask for advice in coping with some of the more irksome challenges.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your strong sense of duty makes you a valued and trusted member of your community. Have you considered a career in law enforcement?

HOLLYWOOD -- Will Smith is reportedly being paid a whopping $35 million by Netflix for "Bright 2" (the original "Bright," with Joel Edgerton, cost $90 million to make). That's more than the busiest guy in movies, Dwayne Johnson, who makes $20 million per film. Will has a cameo in "Student of the Year 2" (now in theaters), but goes big and wide as the Genie in the live-action "Aladdin" (out May 24), and the animated spy comedy "Spies in Disguise," with Tom Holland (due Sept. 13). Next he'll star in three-time Oscar-winning director Ang Lee's sci-fi film "Gemini Man," in which Smith plays the dual role of a man and his own clone (coming Oct. 11), followed by the action comedy "Bad Boys for Life," with Martin Lawrence and Vanessa Hudgens (Jan. 17).

Ryan Reynolds, who starred in and co-produced "Deadpool" (which grossed $783 million) and its sequel ($785 million gross), has upped his price and star status. He is reportedly getting $27 million from Netflix to star in "6 Underground," about a billionaire-financed vigilante squad. Meanwhile, Reynolds' "The Hitman's Bodyguard," which earned $176 million, has spawned a sequel, "The Hitman's Wife's Bodyguard," with Samuel L. Jackson and Salma Hayek (due in 2020). His latest film, the just-released "Pokemon Detective Pikachu," is a big hit.

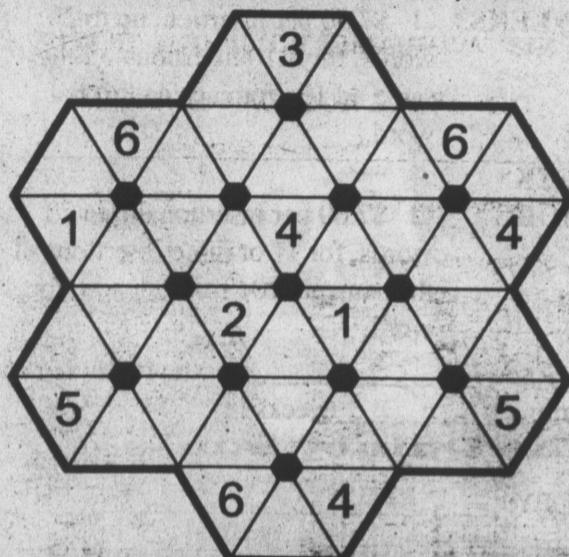

When "Doctor Dolittle" opened in 1967 with Oscar-winner Rex Harrison (who was a big star), it was a flop that cost $17 million and earned only $9 million. Twentieth Century Fox was more successful in 2001 with Eddie Murphy (which cost $70 million and earned $176 million). Fox sold it to Universal Pictures for "The Voyage of Doctor Dolittle" (out Jan. 17) and paid Robert Downey Jr. $20 million to play the man who can talk to animals.

Tom Cruise is getting $14 million for "Top Gun: Maverick"; Jason Statham $13 million for "The Fast and The Furious" spin-off "Hobbs & Shaw" (while Idris Elba is making only $8 million for the same film); and Emily Blunt reportedly is going to make $13 million for the sequel to "A Quiet Place." Leonardo DiCaprio and Brad Pitt are earning only $10 million each for Quentin Tarantino's "Once Upon a Time in Hollywood," the same as Gal Gadot, who received a huge pay hike for "Wonder Woman 1984."

Hollywood is well-represented in nominations for this year's Tony Awards (June 9 at Radio City Music Hall), with the musicals "Beetlejuice" (eight nominations) and "Tootsie" (11 nominations). Among acting nominations are Bryan Cranston ("Network"), Jeff Daniels ("To Kill a Mockingbird"), "Star Wars" Adam Driver ("Burn This"), Annette Bening ("All My Sons") and Laurie Metcalf ("Hillary and Clinton"). Blue Star Mother's Flag
--- A reader asked, "What country uses a little flag with just a red border and a big blue star in the center?" It is a service flag designed in 1917 that identified a family that had someone in service during the war.

It was entered into the Congressional Record in September 1917, and it can only be used according to strict guidelines. The idea expanded to a Gold Star flag for a family that lost a son or daughter during any United States war, including World War II, the Gulf War and the Vietnam War. The flag size must be in the ratio of 10 to 19 like the United States flag, and it must be smaller and flown below, never above, the Stars and Stripes. In 2010, the Silver Star honoring those wounded in the wars was approved by the House of Representatives.

The Gold- and Blue-star mothers, wives and families have special clubs, lapel buttons, ribbons and meetings. In 1936, the last Sunday in September was declared Gold-Star Mother's Day. There are new flags flying in windows now, and the old ones are being saved and collected as interesting war memorabilia.

Q: I bought a poster of dogs playing poker about 30 years ago and would like to know if it has any value. It shows seven dogs sitting around a table playing poker. One dog is passing a card under the table to the dog next to him. There are no names on the poster. Is it worth anything?

A: The picture on your poster is called "A Friend in Need," part of a series of sixteen anthropomorphic dog paintings by Cassius Marcellus Coolidge (1844-1934) and published by Brown & Bigelow, a company in St. Paul, Minn. They were commissioned for a 1903 advertising campaign for cigars. Nine of the paintings pictured dogs in a poker game, and collectors often call the paintings "Dogs Playing Poker." The paintings were reproduced on posters, prints, calendars and other items. This painting of the two dogs cheating at poker is the most popular in the series. An original painting would sell for a lot of money, but prints are common and can sell for $10 or less. A pair of the paintings sold at auction for over $590,000 a few years ago.

What's really odd, though, is the fact that the creatures are color-blind.

* The word "conspire" means, literally, "to breathe together," meaning to be in harmony.

* Even though he was arrested and put on trial numerous times, famed 19th-century outlaw Frank James was never convicted of anything and never went to prison. He died in 1915, at the age of 72, of natural causes.

by Jo Ann Derson

you have in an emergency cash fund? Experts say that at a minimum, you should have three months' worth of necessary expenses (home payment, utilities, food and gas, minimum debt payments, etc.) in an accessible form. This means you can't count the value of assets or stocks you own, nor any retirement funds. This sounds hard because it is, but it could make the difference between success or failure in an emergency.

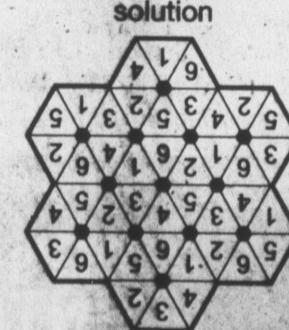

* "To clean the outsides of our windows, we mixed vinegar and hot water and added a couple drops of dish soap. Then I used a microfiber cloth to scrub the window and its surrounding casing. We rinsed them with the hose and used the squeegee I keep in my car to get the water drops off. They look great!" -- Y.D. in Arkansas

"To paraphrase General Patton, 'While we mourn Ed and the other Americans who died in service to our country, we thank God that they lived,'" said Davenport.

Davenport said his friends' sacrifices must be honored.

"We are strengthened by their courage, heartened by their valor, and respectful of their memory," he said. "We Americans must continue to stand for the ideals for which they lived and died."

Mayor Thomas Koch, Councillor at-Large Noel DiBona, and Massachusetts Detachment of the Sons of the American Legion Adjutant Clifford Smith also spoke during the ceremony. Boy Scout Troop 6 member Kevin Toler was recognized for his Eagle Scout project where he installed 400 new flag holders in a grid pattern on the island.

Master of Ceremonies

Guy Ferris, a member of the Morrisette Post and Sons of the American Legion Squadron, said that the goal of 500 inscribed bricks that make up the walkway and flagpole apron has been attained.

QUINCY FIREFIGHTER Steve Sweets (above) plays "Amazing Grace" on the bagpipes at Sunday's Memorial Day observance at Flags for Veterans Island as veterans and officers of the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294 (right) pause to remember the supreme sacrifice of local veterans.
